

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

THE churchwardens' accounts published in this volume include those of four parishes in the diocese of Durham: two urban and two rural ones. One of the urban and one of the rural churches were under the jurisdiction of the Archdeacons of Durham; the other two under that of the official of the Dean and Chapter, who till lately had archidiaconal authority over certain parishes, constituting what was called the Officialty. Thus these four parishes may be taken as representative specimens. The contents of the Pittington book, which comes first in order, are given in full, as being more within compass than the rest, and the editor having felt a pardonable partiality for the records of his own parish. Extracts only from the others have been given; but sufficient, it is hoped, for illustrating the proceedings of the several parishes. In all of them the entries of some early years are given in full: in the St. Oswald's book till 1615, and again in the same book during the period of the Commonwealth and the Restoration.

The whole period comprised is from A.D. 1580 (22 Eliz.) to A.D. 1700 (11 W. and M.), an eventful and important one both ecclesiastically and politically. It will be observed, however, that the accounts of the parish of St. Nicholas (being the earliest there preserved) do not begin till A.D. 1665, and thus lack some of the peculiar interest of the others; but they will be found valuable as illustrating the period after the Restoration;—among other things as to pews, briefs, and the long-continued use of frankincense.

It may appear to some that parochial account books, however ancient, are not likely to be of any great interest or importance. To any who think so it may be replied that no genuine human records can be without interest to such among us as delight in realising the thoughts, usages, and doings of our ancestors, who were once busy upon the earth as we are now. They help to conjure up before us those vanished generations, with the language they used, their views, their manners, their dealings with each other, and the institutions under which they lived: and entries or allusions may from time to time be found in them which are of value to the linguist, the political economist, or the historian.

The following points of interest claim notice among others :—

Pews The light thrown on the origin and progress of the system of appropriation of seats in churches. In the country parish of Pittington its first beginning appears in the year 1584 (see Introduction to the Pittington book), the church being already, it would seem, provided with fixed seats or stalls, presumably till that time free to all, though there, as elsewhere, men and women had been placed apart. In the parishes of Houghton and St. Oswald the system of appropriation had been of earlier date; but apparently, as at Pittington, originally this: That individual parishioners had seats in particular stalls assigned them by the churchwardens, tenable during life and residence in the parish, on payment of 4*d.* by each person on entry; and that it became customary, on the death of such persons, for their representatives to renew the privilege, paying a fee to the parish (at first usually 2*d.*) for 'renewal.' (Exchanges were also allowed as a private transaction between individuals, but not without the leave of the churchwardens, or without a money payment to the parish.) Thus families came to claim a permanent right in certain stalls, which had been assigned to their representatives, and renewed from time to time, after the manner of leasehold property, subject only to the payment of fines for renewal. The assumption of such right appears in a marked way from an entry in the book of St. Oswald's, A.D.

1624, when the 'owner' of a stall, Mr. Ralph Maddeson, did himself 'assigne, give, and set over his stall to Nicholas Petifer, to him, and his house for ever.' In some cases it was in virtue of occupancy of certain tenements in the parish that the right was claimed and recognised; but still new occupants had to pay an acknowledgment to the churchwardens for entry on their stalls. Thus at St. Oswald's in 1608 two shillings were paid for 'the stall belonging to Burn Hall,' and in 1615 John Farrow paid one shilling for 'one stall belonging to Houghall.' Thus also frequently at Houghton, and, after the Restoration, in the parish of St. Nicholas. 'Owners' of stalls seem in all cases to have been required to keep their own in repair; and at Houghton in 1607, and again in 1658, we find them ordered to do so under pain of forfeiting them altogether in favour of others who would fulfil the condition. This shows that though the system of permanent appropriation to houses or families was evidently at that time the recognised rule in that parish, yet no indefeasible right of possession was acknowledged; the churchwardens still asserting their legal power of seating the parishioners in church. A further ground on which claims to permanent ownership would be founded was the custom of allowing individuals to build new stalls or pews at their own charge for themselves in vacant parts of the church. The earliest instance before us is that of Sir Henry Anderson at Pitlington, who, when appropriated seats were first assigned in 1584, built his own new stall for himself, and another for his tenants. There are many instances of the same custom afterwards in the other parishes, a fee, varying with the room occupied, being in all cases paid to the churchwardens. Evidence of the 'auncient custome' with regard to stalls or pews in the parish of Houghton-le-Spring, previous to the date of these books, but agreeing with what is found in them, will be found in vol. xxi. of the Surtees Society's Publications, p. 106.

We may remark, further, that the book of the parish of St. Nicholas exhibits the manner in which the Bishop's Consistory Court, far from guarding the rights of the common parishioners, abetted and perpetuated the system of appropriation. In the other parishes we find no mention of faculties; but in this many were obtained, confirming legally certain pews to certain families, usually with the condition of such families continuing to reside in the parish and to resort to the church, though in one instance (March 24, A.D. 1702) a pew is confirmed, without any such condition expressed, to 'Robert Lamb, his wife and family for ever.' The usual condition may, however, have been understood, or the Court may have exceeded its legal powers.

When the old church of St. Nicholas was pulled down, and a new one built, in the year 1858, the whole internal accommodation had become so exclusively appropriated that the only way of enabling the common parishioners to worship in their parish church had been to institute extra evening services at which the pews were thrown open. It was much to the credit of the pewholders that of their own accord, and without any new faculty to compel them, they agreed in the new church to relinquish their customary and even legal rights, allowing it to be, as it is now, entirely free and unappropriated.

It appears that originally it was to individuals only that sittings or 'rooms' in stalls were assigned for payment, and that men were placed apart from women. Gradually, however, it will be seen that the custom of assigning whole stalls or pews to families came in, the earliest instance in these books being the assignment of a stall to a man and his wife together at St. Oswald's in 1603, after which, in 1606, Mr. Salvin has a family stall allowed him for Croxdale, one shilling, instead of the customary fourpence, being paid in each case. At Houghton also, in 1604, a man and his wife have a stall to themselves. Sir Henry Anderson's stall at Pitlington, built by himself in 1584, was, however, probably meant for himself and his family. It is difficult, in fact, to determine the date at which the whole system of appropriated pews began. It is often supposed that Protestantism was its parent, and that there was no such thing before the Reformation. But it appears from the 'Ludlow Churchwardens' Accounts' (printed for the Camden Society, A.D. 1869), which reach back to the year 1540, that the assignment of stalls in return for money payments to the churchwardens was at that early date an established custom there, and also that a certain possession in pews, with reversion to heirs, was recognised; and in Appendix II. to the above-named publication the learned editor adduces satisfactory proof of the existence of closed, and even locked, pews in some churches long before the date of the earliest Ludlow accounts. Still it would seem that it was not till after the Reformation that the system became general. The changed order of service was likely to promote it, people being required to take personal part in the whole of Morning and Evening Prayer, and not merely to be present at Mass said for them at the Altar; and especially having to sit patiently under sermons. It is significant that the places paid for are in the earlier period of the Ludlow book called 'kneeling places' instead of 'seats,' as at a later date.

The light thus thrown on the origin and progress of the system of appropriated pews is of peculiar interest at the present day, now that the principle of free and open churches is being so laudably contended for in many quarters. It seems undoubted that, by the common law, the naves of our parish churches are free to all parishioners, and that all have an equal right to accommodation there, subject, however, to the power of the churchwardens, as officers of the Ordinary, to assign them places. But, on the other hand, a sort of recognised property in pews appears to be of such old standing, and so confirmed in past times by the Courts Ecclesiastical, that it is not surprising that many of those who have had their own exclusively appropriated pews have been found slow to acquiesce in a return to the more ancient and better way.

Continual mention will be found in all these books of Lairstalls 'lairstalls,' for which the churchwardens received payment. The term is now obsolete. It occurs similarly in the above-named Ludlow book under the form of 'leystalle' or 'lay-stalle;' and the editor of that book seems to have been ignorant of its meaning, conjecturing that it had some relation to a pew. It is now ascertained, and is evident from the books before us, that it meant a grave within a church, the stone laid over such grave being called a 'lairstone.' The word appears to have gone out of use at Ludlow after the year 1543, the terms 'pitt,' or 'grave' being afterwards used. But its use continued in our northern parishes, certainly into the last century; and it is somewhat curious that, though intramural interments long continued, the old word should be now so entirely unknown. Remarkable is the large number of such interments formerly. It is not easy to understand how room could be found for so many in successive years; and they must have involved continual disturbance of the floor of the church and of the pews. They would be likely also to cause an offensive odour, especially as the discovery of bones under the floors of many churches has shown that the graves were often far from deep. It would be to guard against the nuisance thus arising that at Houghton in 1657 the sexton was required to make graves within the church a yard and a half in depth at least; and to the same cause might be partly due the continuance of the use of frankincense, of which there is the most frequent mention in the St. Nicholas book, as being purchased especially, though not only, when the Bishop visited the church. With regard to the continued use of frankincense, it may be here observed that it was not confined to churches. Houses also were fumigated with incense. But in churches especially, with whatever intention, incense appears to have been in general use during the seventeenth century. For George Herbert, who died A.D. 1632, in his 'Priest to the Temple' (ch. xiii.), admonishes the country parson to perfume the church with incense at great festivals, and the Ritual Committee of the Lower House of Convocation, February 9, 1866, found that 'the burning of incense in a standing vessel had been practised since the Reformation in some churches and chapels, cathedral, collegiate, royal, episcopal, and parochial,' and that 'instances may be found down to the middle of the last century.' There is no evidence, nor is it probable, that it was used ritually as an adjunct of the service. But it is possible that it was still regarded as an expressive symbol, as well as serving for the purpose of fumigation. The last mention of it in the book of St. Nicholas is in the year 1683, 'at the Lord Bishop's coming to church.' In the country parish of Pittington, it does not appear that this luxury was indulged in; but on one occasion (A.D. 1589) we find there junipers taken to the church, presumably for a similar purpose of fumigation. Juniper, as well as incense, will be seen to have been used in this way in the parish of St. Nicholas. See years 1667 and 1676.

The following, from Ben Jonson's 'Every Man out of his Humour,' illustrates the use of juniper as well as frankincense for fumigation, proving also what has been said above as to such fumigation not being confined to churches.

DELIRO [in preface]: A fellow sincerely besotted on his owne wife. He doth sacrifice two-pence in juniper to her every morning before she rises.

ACT II. Sc. 4.

FIDO [with more perfumes and herbs]: Where will you have 'hem burn, sir?

DELIRO: Here, good Fido.

MACILENTE: What meanes this, Signor Deliro, all this censaing?

DELIRO: Cast in more frankincense, yet more, well said:

She late hath found much fault with every room

Within my house . . .

Then here she hath a place (on my back side)

Wherein she loves to walke; and that (shee said)

Had some ill smels about it. Now this walke

Have I (before shee knowes it) thus perfumed

With herbes and flowers, . . .

To keepe the aire in awe of her sweet nostrils.

At Houghton (A.D. 1636) we find pitch and tar used for 'smoking the church,' p. 302, and at Ripon Minster rosin appears to have sometimes served the purpose of incense. See 'Memorials of Ripon,' Surt. Soc. Public., vol. lxxxi. pp. 209, 216, 222.

Further interesting in these records will be found their Discipline continual references to the discipline exercised by the Spiritual Courts under Elizabeth and the Stuart kings; as also to the action of the Justices at certain periods when the penal laws against recusancy are otherwise known to have been rigidly enforced. In illustration of the ecclesiastical jurisdiction, as it bore upon our parishes, extracts from the Act books of the Courts are given in an appendix.

Commun-

Interesting also is the evidence afforded of the frequency of Communion in former times. From the beginning of the books till after the Restoration there seem to have been seldom more than four Communion occasions during the year in any of the parishes, one of which was always at Christmas (though not necessarily on Christmas Day), and another, of course, at Easter. This last is called at St. Oswald's 'the great and general Communion.' There were often several celebrations at this season, beginning sometimes on Palm Sunday, and continued during the Holy Week and after Easter Day. Bishop Barnes, in his Injunctions, A.D. 1577, ordered monthly Communion in all parishes; but the order seems to have been a dead letter, for it was not till after the Restoration, and then at Houghton only, that we find in these books any mention of monthly Communion. The view of the sacrament being a continual Eucharist, as well as a Communion, seems to have been comparatively lost sight of under the reaction against the 'Romish' doctrine of 'sacrifices of Masses,' till its revival by the Caroline divines. To be noted also is the way in which all parishioners were compelled to Communicate once a year at least through the action of the Courts. Such long-continued and vexatious compulsion may, perhaps, account in some measure for the neglect of Communion by the church-going population generally in more recent times, after discipline had ceased; for people would be likely to have a distaste for the ordinance to which they had been driven against their will, and often on political rather than religious grounds. Nor can we wonder at the bad odour into which the Spiritual Courts generally fell, when we perceive from these books, and from the appended

Acts of Court, how harassing they must have been to parishes, with their constant citations, at the instance often of interested apparitors, their protracted proceedings, their continual injunctions of penance, and their exaction of fees. Readers of Chancer's 'Canterbury Tales' will not need to be reminded that the procedure of the Spiritual Courts, long before the Reformation, which left it unchanged, had been a standing grievance among the people. They may remember the picture of the 'Sompnour,' and how it is said of him in the 'Frere's Tale':

A sompnour is a renner up and down
 With maundements for fornicacioun,
 And is y-bete at every tounes end.

Among other points which may be of special interest to various readers may further be mentioned the allusions to political events and changes, and the evidences of the extent to which these affected parishes (the Houghton book being especially thus illustrative of the Commonwealth period); the possession by parishes of common armour; the provision for the poor; the current prices of commodities and of labour, and also words and phrases which are now obsolete, or linger only as provincialisms. Some of such words are explained in the notes, and others in the index of names and things appended at the end of the book for facility of reference to points of especial interest, though not intended as an exhaustive one.

Political events, &c.

Further, some intimation of the state of general education in successive periods may possibly be found from observation of the proportion of persons able to write their own names to those who made marks only in the frequently recurring signatures to Acts of Vestry. With respect to such marks, it is evident from these books, if proof were needed, that the not uncommon notion of their representing usually the sign of the cross is erroneous. They are represented as crosses in this printed reproduction of the books, because of the difficulty of imitating their various forms. But in the originals, each person who could not write is found to have had his own peculiar mark, seldom of a cross-like form, and often representing rudely the initials of his own name. One such mark will be found reproduced, as in the original manuscript, on page 213. It appears to be a rude imitation of W, the initial letter of the signer's name.

Eastern
bisho^{ps}

In the Pittington book (A.D. 1611) mention will be found of a 'bishop of Gerese' (probably meaning Greece) receiving a donation of 3*s.* 7*d.* from the churchwardens (see page 63 and note). Since the sheets were printed the editor has become aware that in the previous year a strange prelate, probably the same person, received relief also at Chester-le-Street, and another, or the same, afterwards in 1625. For in the vestry-book of that parish are the following entries: 'A.D. 1610. Given to collectors for reliefe of an archbishop, being a stranger.' 'A.D. 1625. Given to a strange bishopp that travailed throwe the countrie, 2*s.*' Further evidence of needy Eastern prelates having been in the country during the seventeenth century appears in the book of churchwardens' accounts at Allhallows, Barking, for 1629-1667, as follows: '1631, Dec. 7. Delivered to M^r Abbott (vicar) for a poor Greeke Archbishopp, 4*s.*' '1634, Ap. 7. P^d M^r Abbott, which he gave Abraham, Patriarck of Achxidone, 6*s.* 8*d.*'

'1633, Dec. 8. Given Gregory Argenopulus, a Thessalonian, by consent of M^r Abbott, 2*s.*' ('N. and Q.,' 3rd S. iii. 230). Further, Bp. Cosin, of Durham, in a letter to M^r Stapylton, Feb. 3, 1662, refers to a begging letter from the Greek Archbishop of Laodicea, Anastatius Comnenus, and directs Stapylton to pay him a pension of 5*l.* at Michaelmas, and 5*l.* at Lady Day ('Corresp.' Surtees Soc. ii. 102). It would be interesting to discover what brought all these Eastern dignitaries in needy circumstances to England at the period referred to. Collier ('Eccles. Hist.') states that Charles I. had commissioned certain Turkey merchants to collect and bring to England any ecclesiastical books or manuscripts that they might be able to procure in the East. Possibly Eastern ecclesiastics may have been thus in the first place led to visit our country.

The editor, in conclusion, desires to express his obligation to the Rev. J. T. Fowler, librarian of the University of Durham, and editor of 'Memorials of Ripon' and other works in this series, for valuable assistance in the preparation of this work for the press. Some of the extracts from the Houghton book have been made and arranged by him; those from the second volume of that book (pp. 337-344) entirely so. He has also rendered important aid in deciphering some parts of the original MSS., explaining obscure words, and revising proofs.

INTRODUCTION.

16 THERE are some points of especial interest about this book, to which attention may be drawn. First, with regard to the book itself, how it has come to be preserved, and the purpose it has served.

It is a small volume bound in leather, 6 × 8 inches in size, containing the yearly parish accounts, acts and resolutions of the Vestry, inventories of church goods &c., from the year 1584 to 1699 inclusive. After the latter date there are no more parochial entries, the pages still unfilled having been used by the Rev. James Deason, who became Vicar in 1772, for statements about the benefice, and his own emoluments and disbursements connected therewith. Similar statements by a previous Vicar, the Rev. Arthur Shepherd (1730-1770), preserved in the book though not written on its pages, include the following reference to it:—‘Extract from an old Parish Quarto-Book of Acc^{ts}, having my seal on its back, viz.—“1595 June 1. Memorandum that M^r Vicar is content that as long as he doth find Bread & Wine for the Communion receiving 2^d yearly of every House for the same he to give every year a Lamb to the use of the parish or the price of a Lamb as the common Sort pay when he letteth them their own Tith Lambs. W^m Murray Vicar.” N.B. I purpose to lodge and leave the said Book, together with this and other Books & papers relating to the Living and parish upon the Cupboard Head in my

Study, for the use of my Successor; tho' I rec^d nothing of this kind from any of my predecessors, but what is promiscuously, confusedly, and imperfectly interspers'd in a Little Bound-Book of family affairs, given me by M^r Forster, my predecessor's brother in Law; and came an utter stranger to the parish and every person in or near it.' The 'old parish Quarto-Book of Acc^{ts}' thus referred to is certainly the one before us, which has since been preserved in the Vicarage. It has a seal on its back, and contains the entry above cited. Where Shepherd had found it does not appear; but it is obvious why he was anxious to provide for its safe custody in the hands of succeeding Vicars. His motive appears from the extract he has made from it in proof of the Vicar's ancient right to the tithe of lambs, in which extract he has underlined 'Tith Lambs.' For in his time vicarial tithes had ceased to be paid: certain fixed payments, much below the proper value of the tithes, alleged to be an ancient and legal modus, were made instead. Shepherd probably felt that the Vicars were being cheated, and, though unable to assert his rights, was desirous that his successors should retain in their hands this evidence of tithes having once been paid. Vicar Deason after him was of the same mind. For among the memoranda which, as has been said, he has inserted in the later pages of the book we find as follows:—'It is clear to me by the Endowment that Hay Tythe, Wool & Lamb, Turnips, & all other Vicarial Tythes, belong & properly are due to the Vicar: but your two Esquires have always taken great Pains to cutt short & abridge the Vicar of his Right, I was obliged to sit down & suffer wrong, because I had no Fortune to have a Trial at Law, & I fear the Vicar will never receive his Dues, nor a fifth Part of them without. James Deason, April 5th 1808. See the Endowment from the Dean & Chapter's Books by M^r Bowlby, & copyed by M^r Harrison. All Tythes are there due to the Vicar, except the Corn Tythes.' It was reserved for Dr. James Miller, who became Vicar in 1822, to act on these hints, and attain success. After a protracted lawsuit, and at heavy cost to himself, he at length established the Vicar's claim to the full value of the Vicarial tithes; and this book was produced in court in support of his claim.

The Select Vestry.

The management of parochial affairs by a Select Vestry (consisting of 24, or, as in this parish, of 12 persons) is usual throughout the diocese of Durham. Thus there is nothing peculiar in that of Pittington itself. But the fact is of importance, that we have here a distinct record of the beginning of the system in this parish in the year 1584, and the reason for adopting it.

Select Vestries, i.e. bodies of certain persons in a parish, appointed in some customary way, who oust the rest of the ratepayers from their ordinary right of voting in the parochial vestry, have been subjects of litigation in both spiritual and temporal courts: and the law has been laid down that no select vestry can oust other ratepayers who may choose to assert their rights, if it can be shown to have had its origin since the time of Richard I., which is accounted the limit of legal memory. Hence the 'twelve men' (i.e. the Select Vestry) of the parish of Pittington, who still represent the parish in the management of church affairs, themselves filling up the vacancies in their own body, are shown by the book before us to exercise their exclusive powers on sufferance only. For their first appointment A.D. 1584, for avoidance of 'molestation or troubling of the common people,' is on record.

Though the plan of assigning permanent seats in church to individuals on payment of 4*d.* for entry was the same here as what is found elsewhere, yet it is interesting to observe the apparent beginning of the system in this particular parish, viz. in 1584, after the appointment of the 'twelve'; and also that the privilege was at first confined to men. And when, forty years afterwards, the principal wives of the parish obtained a like distinction, amusing is the difficulty that ensued. The custom, it appears, was to appoint this or that whole stall for the use of certain persons, as many as it would hold, but not to assign particular places for each therein. But one place or 'room' in a stall was held to be more honourable than another; and hence the ladies gave further trouble to the 'twelve' by contending for 'the highest rooms.' (See Orders of Vestry, A.D. 1625.) Pews.

There is no sign in this country parish, as far as the date to which our book extends, of family pews, in which both sexes of the same family sat together (unless Sir Henry Anderson's, built by him as early as 1584, was such a pew), or generally of the more advanced stage of the pew-system observable in the other parishes. But it doubtless came in later. For in a list of the pews made, A.D. 1808, with a view to an assessment of the seat-holders for the reparation of the church, I find 192 out of the whole 220 sittings in pews appropriated to individuals, who were called their proprietors. Only three pews, containing twenty-eight seats in all, were then available for the general population of the three townships of Pittington, Sherburn, and Shadforth.

The
flock.

Peculiar to this parish among the four before us was the ancient way of raising the funds required for parochial purposes. They did not accrue, as in later times, from rates (except when, from time to time, there was a special 'cesment' for some special purpose), but from the profits of a flock of sheep, called 'the Church Shepe,' which were pastured freely on the several farms in the parish. It does not appear that this system originated in 1584, though in that year (when, after the appointment of the select Vestry, parochial arrangements generally seem to have been put into shape) the proportional liability of the farmers for the pasturage of the sheep was defined, viz. one sheep to be fed for every 4*l.* of rental. This system, interesting as suggestive of a simple pastoral community, continued for forty subsequent years; during which the churchwardens' accounts show the sums received in each year for sheep, lambs, and wool, and the disbursements for new purchases, together with frequent statements of the state of the flock on the several farms in the parish. These accounts of the flock are further interesting as showing the current prices at the time. In 1624, the Church flock, being then in a decayed state, was sold. It consisted at that time of six wethers, ten ewes, and five lambs, and realised, together with the wool, 6*l.* 3*s.* 2*d.* Thenceforth the primitive plan, proving inadequate, was given up as obsolete, and the parishioners began to be regularly rated as in modern times.

Lairstalls.

There is nothing peculiar in this book with respect to lairstalls, unless it be worth notice that the entry, A.D. 1585, 'for layinge down a lairstall and mendinge other stalls in the church,' together with the fact that Jarret Swalwell, who was paid for this work appears otherwise employed as a joiner, suggests the idea of graves in church having been at that early date covered with wood. Such might be the case if, as is probable, the floor of the church had not so far been flagged, the bare earth being strewn with rushes.¹ It may be significant of a recent introduction of stone coverings that in the year 1609, and till 1614, we find lairstone instead of lairstall, and that the Nicholas Younger who now lays them down is evidently a mason. It is noteworthy that in the same year, 1609, 'lairstone' instead of 'lairstall' is for the first time used also in the St. Oswald's book (though not afterwards continued), and also that the church appears to have been then recently for the first time flagged. All mention of lairstalls ceases in the Pittington book after the year 1623, though continued into the following century in the other books. There is, however, no reason to suppose a cessation of intramural interments, which appear to have been common till comparatively recent times. Interesting in connection with them (it may be here observed) is the inscription on the gravestone of Arthur Shepherd, Vicar of Pittington from 1730 to 1770, to whom we are indebted for the preservation of this our Vestry Book. He lies, as had been directed by himself, not in the church, but in the churchyard, opposite the porch, and seems to have prepared his own and his wife's epitaph, which is as follows:—

(1) Or, rather, in this country church, with straw only, though rushes were elsewhere usual in houses and churches. For see an entry in this book A.D. 1605: 'For two thrave of straw for the stalls.'

Anna, uxor Arthuri Shepherd Vicarii de Pittington, hic suam deposuit sarcinam A.D. MDCCXXXII. Hic et ille suam A.D. MDCCCLXX.

Hic inquam, ut nemini nocerent mortui qui nemini nocuerunt vivi.

He thus appears to have been enlightened beyond his age to perceive the noxious effects of intramural interments.

Attention may here be drawn to the allusions, found in this book only, to the 'General Chapters' and 'Synods' instituted by Bishop Barnes, A.D. 1577, but which seem to have ceased after his death. Some account of them will be given in the notes.

Discipline and Communions.

As to Communion, they were in the main celebrated as was usual in the other parishes; never monthly, as Bishop Barnes had enjoined. But there seems some reason to conclude that for some years before 1587 there had been none at all at Pittington. For in that year we find, for the first time, entries of disbursements for bread and wine, and for 'a botell to bring home the wyne in'; and there are immediately celebrations on two successive Sundays in July, and afterwards at Christmas, Epiphany, and Easter. This was after a visitation held by Bishop Barnes on the 13th of June; and thus it seems not unlikely that he, having found Communion neglected, had required a remedy without delay. For the first time also, in the above year we find money received from the parishioners (11s. 2d.) towards the cost of the elements ; and, in the December of the same year, for the first time, presentments of the non-communicants. Again in the years 1590-1, 1591-2, there is no mention of any bread and wine being purchased, or of money collected for it ; but in 1592-3, there are as many as six Communionss ; and this was after the churchwardens had been five times summoned before Mr. Prentice, the official's deputy, in the preceding year. Hence it may have been that Communionss had again been neglected, and only resumed under pressure from the Spiritual Court, which required all parishioners to communicate, and to have the opportunity of doing so. Such neglect on the part of the parish was not improbable. It appears from Visitation articles of other bishops that there was difficulty for some time after the Reformation in securing in many parishes an opportunity for all to communicate once in the year at least. This difficulty might arise from two causes : first, that (as was especially the case in the North) the country population in many parts had no great relish for the reformed order in religion ; and, secondly, that they objected to the burden laid upon them for the cost of wine. With regard to the first of these two causes, Sir Ralph Sadler states in 1569, speaking of these northern parts, that ' there be not in all this countrey ten gentilmen that do favour and allowe of her majestie's proceedings in the cause of religion ' ; and he describes the common people as ignorant, superstitious, and blinded with the olde popish doctrine. (Sir Cuthbert Sharpe's ' Memorials of the Rebellion,' p. x.) Further, in the Rising of the North (A.D. 1569—not long before the date of the beginning of our book), Pittington, among other parishes, had been seriously implicated. A stone altar and a ' hallywater stoon ' had been set up in the church, by order, it was alleged, of the churchwardens, one of whom confessed to having followed the Procession of the Cross and been present at Mass when it was sung in the Cathedral at Durham ; and among the eighty persons said to have been hanged at Durham afterwards for example's sake (a certain proportion being selected from every parish from the many implicated), one was from the parish of Pittington. (See ' Depositions and Ecclesiastical Proceedings.' Surtees Soc. Publications, A.D. 1845, p. 175.)

Of the difficulty in providing Communionss owing to the cost of the elements there are, in this country parish of Pittington, numerous signs. When in 1587 (as has been seen) wine had to be got, and in the following year also, the money specially collected for this purpose came considerably short of the cost; and in 1589 there is no entry of anything being received. From a memorandum in 1590 it appears that, every householder having been expected to pay 2*d.*, the cottagers had refused to pay. Then, after the apparent cessation of Communion in this and the following year, which has been already noticed, the receipts for bread and wine in 1592 and afterwards are still found short of the cost; and in 1594 again no receipts at all are entered. In 1595 the new Vicar, William Murray, came to the rescue by undertaking to provide the elements himself, hoping, it would seem, to receive into his own hands the annual twopences from the householders, and promising to give annually to the parish flock a lamb every year into the bargain. But the plan seems to have failed: for in 1625, under his successor, Richard Thursby, there is a new order requiring every communicant to pay 1*d.* for bread and wine annually to the churchwardens. Still the accounts show annual deficiency, till in 1640 only 3*s.* 6*d.* appears to have been paid. At length, when the system of compulsory rates for all necessary purposes had come in, Communion was thus provided for among other church expenses.

There will be found in this book no lack of interesting allusion to historical events and political changes; and especially during the Parliamentary war. It is, however, remarkable how little the ordinary routine of the parish shows signs of having been affected by the Commonwealth. The Vicar, George Shaw, retained his living undisturbed; and, except for the cessation of ecclesiastical jurisdiction, and a more careless keeping of the accounts, there is nothing, either in this book or in the Parish Register, to mark any change of church order and worship. In the neighbouring parish of Houghton the case was different.

(1) 'The Stock of the Poor' was a fund arising from various bequests dating from the beginning of the seventeenth century. Notices of many of them will be found in the accounts of the years when they were made. There were others after those included in this list: viz. A.D. 1687, Mrs. Dorothy Shaw, 5*l.*; A.D. 1698, Mr. George Johnson of Sherburn, 2*l.*; A.D. 1700, William Swallowell, 3*l.* At first the capital was held by the churchwardens, and by them lent in various sums to certain people, Mr. Ord, the first benefactor, having directed his own bequest to be so dealt with. In 1628 it was handed over to the overseers for the poor, who were required not to lend it except on good and sufficient bond, and to exact repayment of the sums lent annually in the chancel of the church on Easter Tuesday. It is not mentioned again till 1687, when two 'Trustees for the poor' were for the first time appointed for holding and administering it, its amount being then stated as 79*l.* The last allusion to it is in 1693, when William Shaw and Thomas Swallowell receive from Edward Shipperdson and Michell Ingram, the trustees of the preceding year, 42*l.* in money and a bond for 32*l.* What was done with it in the years that followed we have no means of knowing; but there can be no doubt that it constituted what is now known as 'The Charity of a Donor unknown,' of which the following account is given in the Minute Book of the present Trustees: 'It appears by the Gilbert Returns of Charities, made in the year 1786, that the above

Fund was then (but for how many years prior is not known) in the hands of Ralph Shipperdson of Hallgarth in the County of Durham, Esquire, in whose family it has remained until 1861, when the original sum, amounting with arrears to 59*l.* 10*s.*, pursuant to an order of the County Court of Durham, made on December 17, 1860, was paid over by Edmund H. Shipperdson of Hermitage in the County of Durham, Clerk, to the Banking Account of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in the Bank of England, when the Charity Commissioners for England appointed the following parties Trustees for the distribution of the annual Interest and Dividends arising from the said Trust Fund of 59*l.* 10*s.*; viz. Edmund Hector Shipperdson, Clerk; Henry J. Baker Baker, Esq.; and the Vicar and Churchwardens for the time being of Pitlington.' It may be presumed that, one of the Shipperdsons of Hallgarth in this parish having been a trustee of the 'Stock of the Poor' at some date subsequent to 1693, it had been retained in the hands of the family without any account of it being required by the parish, and that its origin had thereupon passed into oblivion, part of the original capital (which was 79*l.* in 1687 and 74*l.* in 1693) having meanwhile disappeared through maladministration or neglect. The editor of these old records feels joy in bringing again to light the names of the benefactors now at rest.

Among them may here be noted: (a) Sir Henry Anderson. He was the owner of Little Haswell and Haswell Grange, to which was attached Elemore Hall in the parish of Pitlington, and also lessee under the Dean and Chapter of the manor of Hallgarth, which had been the Manerium, usually held in the hands of the Lord Prior before the dissolution as the desmesne of the convent. His interest in Hallgarth arose from the marriage of his father, Henry Anderson, sometime of Newcastle, to Isabella daughter of Christopher Morland, the previous lessee. ✓

(b) Raiph Simson. He was the lessee of Hallgarth (1626) after Sir Henry Anderson, who left the parish, going to reside at Long Cowton in Yorkshire, where he bought Cowton Grange. ✓

(c) Mr. William Thursbye. A person of this name, probably the same, appears as one of 'the twelve' in 1618 and 1629, and signs resolutions of the Vestry in 1622. A Thomas Thursby is one of the twelve in 1633, and churchwarden in 1635. A Richard Thursby became Vicar of the parish in 1621. The family thus appears to have been resident in the parish, probably at Ludworth. For early in the seventeenth century we find a Thursby, with others, left in trust by Richard Belasyse, who owned the manor of Ludworth in the parish of Pitlington, for the benefit of his nephews. One of these nephews, William (afterwards Sir William) Belasyse, who lived till 1641, was High Sheriff for several years under three bishops. It might be through his interest that Richard Thursby obtained the living. ✓

(d) Mr. Henrie Sympson. Probably the successor of Ralph Simpson aforesaid as lessee of Hallgarth. The Dean and Chapter devised the manor, A.D. 1642, to trustees in trust for Henry Simpson.

(e) Sir Alexander Hall. He was the owner of Little Haswell, Haswell Grange, and Elemore. Sir Henry Anderson aforesaid, having left the parish, sold the estate A.D. 1631, to William Hall, Merchant and Alderman of Newcastle, for 4,600*l.* Sir Alexander was his son and heir. The latter died A.D. 1641, and his only son, Alexander, before 1648, in childhood. It thus appears that Sir Alexander's bequest to the 'Stock of the poor' did not take effect till after the death of the child, being received in 1649.

✓ (f) Symond Lackenby. See note (1), p. 14. Among the remaining benefactors, the Rawlins and Shadforths of Sherburn, the Halls of Shadforth, and the Swalwells, appear often in the parish accounts as vestrymen or churchwardens, having been families of yeomen of old standing in the parish. Mrs. Dorothy Shaw, who left 5*l.* in 1687, may have been the relict of George Shaw, who became Vicar in 1631, and retained the living during the Commonwealth.

the custodye and charge of the churchwardens at their election.

(1) 'Certeine Monicions and Injunctions given by us Richarde, by Godds divine providence Busshop of Duresme [Bp. Barnes], to the Clergie and Churchwardens within our Dioces, and to everie of theim, respectivelie, in our Sinode by us celebrated & holden at Duresme, in the Gallelee within our Cathedrall church ther, on Teweadaie the first daie of October 1577, and the first year of our traslacion to the sea of Duresme afforesaid.' (See Ecclesiastical Proceedings of Bp. Barnes, Surtees Soc. Publ. 1850, pp. 11-28). Copies of these Monitions were to be supplied to all the clergy at the cost of the several parishes. The Churchwardens are therein monished and enjoined to give up and make a full and perfect account of their receipts and expenses about the church's affairs the last year by them laid out, and make full payment to the hands of the new-sworn Churchwardens of all sums of money remaining in their hands or charge, and full delivery of all church goods, books, and other implements and furnitures, which do appertain to their church to the said new Churchwardens, 'which accompte, payment, and delyvery we commaunde to be registred in the Register booke.' It was in obedience to these Monitions of Bishop Barnes (who seems, from the time of his accession to the see, to have been zealous in putting the diocese into order) that this 'Booke of Accomptes and Recknings' of Pittington parish was provided, and full and careful entries for many subsequent years made therein. 'The Quenes Majeste's Injunctions,' also referred to, were those of Queen Elizabeth, A.D. 1559. See Sparrow's Collection, p. 65; Cardwell's Documentary Annals, i. 178.

(2) The Monitions of Bishop Barnes include a list of 'the furnitures, implements, & bookes, requisite to be had in every church, and so commanded by publike authoritie.' With this list that at Pittington in the main corresponds. Both include a 'Pealter' and a 'Communion Booke,' specified as separate volumes. In both the book called 'the Postills,' or 'Heming's Postill,' is mentioned, the requirement of which in parishes appears to have been peculiar to the Diocese of Durham. (With respect to it, see Ecclesiastical Proceedings of Bp. Barnes, p. 25, note i.) It may be observed that the Monitions require Jewell's 'Defence of the Apology,' which was a treatise issued subsequently to the 'Apology' itself, but that the parish in 1584 seems only to have possessed the 'Apology.' The latter was published by command of the Queen, and ordered to be set up in churches, A.D. 1562. There is no evidence of the parish of Pittington having procured the 'Defence' in obedience to the Monitions of Bp. Barnes. But for later demands upon it to purchase other apologetic works of Jewell, see entry A.D. 1613. With respect to the church plate, it is observable that the Monitions make no mention of a Paten; only of 'A Communion Cuppe of silver with a Cover.' The apparent omission is explained by the fact that the cover of the cup often served the purpose of, and was in fact, the Paten both before and after the Reformation. (See Scudamore's Notitia Eucharistica, p. 490.) At Pittington it appears that, in addition to such 'covering' of the 'Silver Cuppe,' a 'plate of tynne' had been procured, perhaps because the 'covering' was insufficient for the quantity of bread required. But in 1615 and 1619, in which years lists of 'Implements' recur, we find (instead of 'a plate of tynne and a clothe for y^e same,' as in 1584) only 'A lininge cloth for the breade, and in the later of the two years, 'two napkins.' The inference seems to be that, the plate of tin having disappeared, the bread intended for consecration was placed upon a cloth or napkin. Cf. Rubric in the Office of 1549: 'laying the bread upon the corporas or else in the paten.' The 'Silver Cuppe,' being of the Elizabethan period, still remains, but not the 'covering.' This cup was perhaps made of the silver of the old chalice. In the 'Inventory of Church goods &c. within the Countie of the Byshopricke of Duresme,' made by the King's Commissioners, 7 Edw. VI., the church plate at Pittington is described as 'One Challice with a Patten, viii unces.' (Proceedings of Bp. Barnes, Appendix v. p. lvi.) Cf. 'Elton. The Office of the Judge against Richard Morye. He had deliverid unto him a challice that belongeth to the Church of Elton, to deface or make a change of for a Communion cupe' (Ib. p. 128.) The Register Book of this list is no longer extant. The oldest we have was procured A.D. 1598 (see that year): but the entries of the former book, including the year 1574, have been copied into it.

(1) 'A room' means a single sitting in a bench or pew, the whole bench or pew being called 'a stall' (cf. Matth. xxiii. 6; Mark xii. 39; Luke xiv. 7; xx. 46.) So also, but not invariably, in the other books. Often 'stall' is used in the sense of 'room.'

(2) Maister Anderson was the Lessee of the manor of Hallgarth.

taken part in setting up the altar and 'halliwater stoon' in the church at the time of the Rebellion of the Earls, but pleaded that he had acted under the order of the Churchwardens. (See Introduction.) If this was the same person, he had taken warning and become a good conforming parishioner. For he has not only his seat assigned him, but appears also as Churchwarden this same year. Another of the examinates of 1569 was a William Rawling of Sherburn, apparently then Churchwarden ; and it will be observed that a John Rawlinge, no doubt one of the same family, has now a seat assigned him. William, who seems to have most seriously implicated in the proceedings of 1569, may possibly have been the person from Pittington who was hanged. The Rawlings of Sherburn were a family of old standing there, holding leases of land for successive generations. (See Surtees, Hist. of Durham, vol. i. p. 126.) Their names will appear afterwards in this book. One of them, a George Rawling, was in 1627 a benefactor to the 'Stock of the Poor.'

(1) The Lackenbys of Shadforth had a considerable lease for several descents within the Bishop's Manor of Easington. (See Surtees, p. 125.) This Simon appears as Churchwarden in 1624, as Overseer in 1625, and as one of the 12 in 1633 and 1634. He also left 2*l.* to the 'Stock of the Poor.' He is memorable beyond the limits of the parish as the father of John Lackenby, of whom the following account is given in Wood's Athenæ Oxonienses : 'John Lackenby of Magd. Coll., B.A. 1643, was the son of Simon Lackenby of Shadford in the County Palatine of Durham ; did afterwards retire to St. Edmund's Hall, and lived there a close student till the garrison of Oxford was surrendered anno 1646, at which time, perceiving the English Church tottering, he went beyond the sea, changed his religion, and was entered into the English College at Doway. After some time spent there he returned to England, became usher to James Shirley, when he taught in the White Fryers at London in the time of Oliver, but, being seized, and imprisoned for some time, was at length released, and died in London in a mean condition. He was accounted famous among those of his opinion for the Greek and Latin tongues, and for Ecclesiastical History' (Athen. Oxon. Edit. 1691. ii. 716.) His name appears thus in the list of Non-foundationers matriculated at Magdalen College, Oxford, A.D. 1639 : 'John Lackenby, s. of Simon Lackenby, pleb.' He is thus noticed in the Doway Diaries : in the Index, 'Lackenby (alias Hawley) John.' In the list of those who took the Missionary oath from A.D. 1627 to A.D. 1653, p. 46 : '1649. Johannes Lackenby, hic Hawley, Dunelm. Dioces. 29 Decem. 1649.' In 'Subscriptiones eorum qui juramentum Professionis fidei præstiterunt anno 1644, unaque juramentum præstandum ab admittendis ad convictum,' p. 80 : 'Joannes Lackenby (alias Hawley) episcopatus Dunelmensis incola. (2) Ralph Lever, who succeeded his brother, Thomas Lever, as Master of Sherburn Hospital A.D. 1577, and died A.D. 1585. With his brother he had been an exile in Switzerland, and is described as 'a troublesome non-conformist, and very disobedient to his patron [i.e. the Bishop] in trifles and frivolous matters.' (See Collections relating to Sherburn Hospital, published A.D. 1771.) His liability for keeping a part of the churchyard wall in repair was in respect of the farm of Byersgarth, which forms part of the endowment of the hospital. For further allusions to this liability, and disputes concerning it, see years 1585, 1586, 1595, and 1597.

(3) Bishop Barnes, in his Monitions above referred to, ordained that 'yerele there shalbe two Generall Synodes, celebrated and holden at Durisme in the Galele there, the one on the Tuesdaie next followinge the first Sondaie after Easter, and the other on the first Tuesdaie after the Feast of S^t Michaell the Archangell yerele.' They were presided over by the Spiritual Chancellor or his deputy, but were distinct from, and in addition to, the 'General Chapters,' also held by the Chancellor; as to which see note below. A record of the proceedings at a synod is given in Appendix A, from a book entitled Liber Sinodali (1577-1586), preserved in the Diocesan Registry.

(1) The Court of the Official of the Dean and Chapter, held usually at Easter and Michaelmas every year. These courts of visitation had still to be attended in addition to the Synods and Chapters.

(2) Bishop Barnes, in his Monitions, had appointed two 'General Chapters to be held by his Chancellor or Vicar Generall at some convenient church within every Warde and Deanery, in the months of January and July every year.' These were distinct (as has been said) from the Synods in the Galilee above referred to. This year one only was held for each of the various Deaneries (in January and February 1584), the Bishop himself having held his visitation in June. It appears from the *Liber Sinodali*um above referred to that the Chapters were this year held by Dr. Clement Colemore, who became Chancellor A.D. 1582, at Corbridge (January 25), then at Morpeth, Alnwick, Bamborough, Newcastle, Bishop Auckland, and on February 4 at the Church of St. Nicholas in Durham for the Deaneries of Chester and Easington. The parish of Pitlington is thus noticed:—'Pitlington: Robertus Murrow, Vicarius; Gilbert Dixon, Willm Hourd, jurati, 16^d.' The proceedings at a General Chapter were thus laid down in the 'Monitions':—A sermon—the hymn 'Come Holy Ghost'—prayers for the Queen, the Church, the realm, the progress of religion, and for the afflicted and persecuted members of the Church—reading of the Queen's Injunctions and the Bishop's Monitions—presentments by churchwardens—examination of the clergy as to their progress in learning, their lives and conversations, and hearing of their tasks (called also taxes) which had been enjoined them. Finally, absentees were declared contumacious, and excommunicated. The tasks were such as are appointed in Queen Elizabeth's Articles of 1564: 'At the Archdeacon's Visitation the Archdeacon shall appoint the Ourate to certain taxes of the New Testament to be conned without book; and at their next synod to exact a rehearsal of them.' No such tax appears from the *Liber Sinodali*um as having been enjoined at the Chapters since July 1578; but in 1586 we find, 'Epistolam Sancti Judæ juniores clerici memoriter discant erga proximam synodum.'

'Capitulum Generale' was the name anciently applied to the Visitations of the Prior and Convent in the exercise of their archidiaconal jurisdiction. See Depositions and Ecclesiastical Proceedings, Surtees Soc., A.D. 1845.

(1) That is, Rogue Money—a payment required from parishes, which is thus defined, A.D. 1658, in the Houghton book: 'The Rogue money is a yearly payment due by this Parish at Midsommer, payable to the High Constable for prisoners in goale, correction, &c., and since the years 1623 the said payment hath bin three pound five shillings a years.' It appears to have been first paid by the parish of Pittington in 1587 (after appearances of the churchwardens at the quarter sessions about it in 1585 and 1586), amounting at first to 6s. 8d., for which a special cessment was made. In 1593 the term 'Soldier money' occurs, which appears from the wording of the entry to have been then a new one to the churchwardens. For a few years afterwards both terms occur, sometimes so as to denote separate payments; but both came to be included in the term 'Rogue money.' Its double purpose, signified by the two expressions, is shown by that used in 1598, viz. 'for goales, mareners and soldiers,' and still more distinctly in the Houghton book, where in one year we find, 'For mamed souldyers, mariners and the jale.' The payment from Pittington for the whole purpose in 1600 and for eighteen years following became 8s. 8d., and rose to 1*l.* 4s. in 1619.

(1) Thomas Burton, Rector of Stanhope, and afterwards Vicar of Mer-rington, had been Spiritual Chancellor before Clement Colemore (1578-1582). After vacating office he sometimes acted as Commissioner for Visitations. So A.D. 1584 (Proc. of Bp. Barnes, p. 92). The occasion referred to here would be the 'General Chapter' of Feb. 1586, that of the previous July having been held by Colemore in person.

(2) For the probable occasion and circumstances of this presentment see Appendix B.

(3) Christopher Chaitor was the Diocesan Registrar, or 'Register of the Consistory Court.' This would be on the occasion of the 'General Chapter' held by Chancellor Colemore in the Galilee on the day here mentioned in 1586. It comes into the accounts of the churchwardens elected in the previous year because (as appears below) they did not settle with their successors till July 30. Jarrat Swalwell, who had been re-elected May 23, was present

(1) Robert Prentice, Minor Canon and Vicar of St. Giles in Durham, whom Henry Dethick, Prebendary of Durham and Official of the Dean and Chapter, had appointed his Surrogate A.D. 1583. See Appendix A. Simon Comin was a notary public, and Registrar of the Court of the Officialty.

(2) This is the last mention of a 'General Chapter.' Bishop Barnes died in 1587, and neither the Chapters nor the Synods instituted by him appear to have been continued after his death. Henceforth the regular appearances of the churchwardens are only at the Visitations of the Official, held twice in the year, or those of the Bishop in person. They were, however, often summoned for special reasons to the Official's Court, and sometimes to the Chancellor's.

(1) As to this, the first entry of any receipt for the elements of Holy Communion, see remarks in Introduction.

(2) This is the first mention of Sidemen. They are from time to time referred to afterwards as attending churchwardens at visitations and before the justices; but their appointment by the vestry is recorded only in the years 1605, 1606, 1608, the first of which was after the publication of the Canons of 1604, one of which (Canon 90) ordered the election of sidemen.

(3) The revestry (or vestry) adjoined the chancel on the north side, its door, before it was shifted this year, having been at the end of the north aisle of the nave. This appears from the description of the assigned stalls in 1584: 'The shorte stall at the vesterye doore joynynge upon the end of the stall next above writne.' This vestry was probably the old chantry chapel of our Lady, which existed at the time of the dissolution of chantries under Edw. VI. (Proceedings of Bp. Barnes, Surt. Soc., Appendix VI. p. lxviii). Till the demolition of the old chancel in 1846 there were two walled-up arches, which had once communicated with this side chapel, in the north wall (Hutchinson's Hist. of Durham). When it was destroyed there is no evidence to show. It appears from a subsequent entry in this book, A.D. 1624, that it was standing then, and also that it had been provided with a fireplace.

(1) Struck out.

(2) Here for the first time the consent of the Vicar is recorded. So also in some subsequent years, but not usually. The now established custom of nomination of one of the churchwardens by the Incumbent (allowed by the 89th Canon in case of the minister and parishioners being unable to agree) does not appear in any of these books.

And for our dinners the same day, xij d. Item for certifyinge him accordinge to certen artickles which he gave us out the same day, ij d. And for our expenses,

(1) The name Blanat does not appear in the contemporary register of burials, but Robert Blackat does.

(2) This is the first intimation of cracks appearing in the tower of the church. This year it was first propped, and then pinned and plastered, and two masons were sent for to view it. For its more thorough repair, including the buttressing which now supports it, see years 1602, 1608, 1609.

(3) St. Cuthbert's Day occurs also in the Houghton book, viz. September 4 (see A.D. 1604 in that book and other years). This was the Feast of the Translation of St. Cuthbert, having an octave, in the York and Sarum Calendars. The Commemoration of the death (obit) of St. Cuthbert, alone recognised in the Martyrologium Romanum, was March 20. The Fridays after both days are still fair-days at Durham. At one of these fairs we may conclude that the 'weathers' were bought.

iiij d. Item given for drinke to two masons which came to se our steple, iij d. Item given for washinge the church clothes at Christenmas, —. Item given for twoe daies worke in mendinge and plaisteringe the leades with lyme above the church the xxij of November, xx d. Item paied for mendinge the spade iron the same day, ij d. (2) The primary visitation of Tobias Matthew, bishop 1595-1606.

(3) This is the first instance alluded to of the action of the temporal courts in matters of religion. It will be found frequent afterwards.

(4) This was probably with reference to the part of the churchyard wall which was alleged to 'belong to Byersgarth.' (See supra, A.D. 1584, 1585, 1586.) The churchwardens, cited to the Consistory Court (see Appendix B), had probably pleaded the liability of Byersgarth. The case seems to have been one of some difficulty from the length of the proceedings before the Chancellor. Afterwards in this same year the churchwardens make supplication to the justices on the same subject, and wait two days for a decision. The Chancellor may have directed them to apply to the quarter sessions, on the ground that it was a case for the temporal courts. For the law is that 'the parishioners are bound to repair the fence of their churchyard, though, if the owner of lands adjoining the churchyard have used time out of mind to repair so much of the fence thereof as adjoineth to their ground, such custom is a good custom, and the churchwardens have an action at the common law for the same. Nevertheless, if the churchwardens sue a person in the Court Christian in such a case, a prohibition will lie: for this ought to be tried at the common law, inasmuch as this is to charge a temporal inheritance' (Burn's Ecclesiastical Law, vol. i. p. 346). Subsequently, this same year, we find the churchwardens, by order of the vestry, delivering a supplication (presumably in the same case) to 'my Lord' at the Lent Assizes, to which higher court the justices may have referred them. They do not appear to have got the redress they sought, for in 1597, two years later, we find the disputed part of the wall still in ruin.

It is set downe by the xij men the day and year above writne that the churchwardens, James Huntley and John Scotte, shall take the advise and counsell of some of the xij men in byinge and sellinge of their shepe and woule and for the furnishinge of their stint in shepe.

(1) The Spiritual Chancellor. The laws against recusancy seem to have been strictly enforced this year. The churchwardens were twice summoned to the Consistory Court on the subject, as well as to the Assizes.

(2) Ralph Tunstall, S.T.B. (Archdeacon of Northumberland and Prebendary of Durham), appears to have succeeded Dethick for a short time as official of the Dean and Chapter. He sat as such (as appears from the Act-book of the officialty) at a court in St. Oswald's Church, Apr. 21, 1596; but in the following February, and afterwards, Edward Hutton, S.T.B. At the visitation attended by our churchwardens this year both seem to have sat together. Afterwards we find Mr. Hutton only.

(1) I.e. a mat (Low Latin, natta; French, natte). 'One knat' occ. in Inventory in Raine's North Durham, 117. '1531. for nates 1^d.' Leverton Ch. W. Accounts: Archæologia, xli. 353. The procuring of 'a natt' for the same purpose appears also in the Houghton book in the following year, 1598. It may have been ordered by the ordinary. The ancient place for churchings was 'ante ostium ecclesiæ.' This was altered in 1549 to 'the choir door,' and in 1552 to 'nigh unto the table.' The present rubric directs only 'in some convenient place, as hath been accustomed, or as the Ordinary shall direct.' The 'accustomed place' still varies in different parishes, though it is most usually at the altar-rails. Bishop Wren's 'Orders and Injunctions for the Diocese of Norwich,' A.D. 1636, enjoin, 'That women to be churched come and kneel at a side near the Communion Table without the rail.' The Bishop of Durham (Tobias Matthew) may have given some direction on the subject, so as to account for these similar entries about the same time in the two parishes.

(2) 'Dighting' means dressing, or furbishing, or, generally, putting into order. The leads of the church roof are also 'dighted' from time to time. The 'harness' was the armour for military service which parishes had to maintain. Similarly at Houghton we find the 'harness' or 'armour' annually 'dressed' from the beginning of the book of that parish. In the town parish of St. Oswald there is no allusion to any. In the parish of Pitlington the harness of Byersgarth and of Hetton on the Hill is, in the years that follow, similarly 'dighted,' which seems to show that the several estates had been anciently required to supply their several contingents. In 1620, and afterwards, muskets and 'costolets' (cutlasses?) were bought, to meet the requirements of the time, special cessments being made for the purpose. So also at Houghton.

(1) This is the first notice of provision for the relief of the poor; consequent on the poor law of 39 Eliz. (A.D. 1598). The churchwardens, &c., are several times before the justices on the subject this year and in the years following. Anciently the maintenance of the poor had been mainly an ecclesiastical concern, though before the reign of Elizabeth there had been some legislation with regard to it. By 27 H. VIII. c. 25 the churchwardens or two others of every parish were required to make collections for the poor on Sundays. By 5 & 6 Edw. VI. c. 2 the minister and churchwardens were to appoint annually two or more 'gatherers' or 'collectors' of alms for the poor. But our present poor-law system dates from the reign of Elizabeth. By 5 Eliz. c. 3 the election of the 'collectors' was given to the parishioners. By 14 Eliz. c. 5 (A.D. 1573) the justices were empowered to appoint such 'collectors,' and also one 'overseer' for the poor, in every parish; and compulsory rates were authorised. Then came 39 Eliz. c. 3 (A.D. 1598), by which the churchwardens of every parish and four substantial householders there, to be nominated yearly in Easter week by two justices, were to be called overseers of the poor of the same parish. After this was 43 Eliz. c. 2 (A.D. 1602), which constitutes in the main our poor-law system. In the parish of Pittington it was not till 1623 that two 'overseers of the poor' appear to have been annually elected by the Easter vestry; but by 39 Eliz. the churchwardens were themselves overseers, and others may have been nominated meanwhile by the justices, with whom the appointment really rests. Observe the 'precept' before the end of this present year (1599) to the 'overseers of the poor.' We find in this parish no special poor rate ordered or collected till the year 1648, notwithstanding the power of exacting one given in 1573. There were probably few destitute persons in the parish, and such as there were may have been sufficiently aided from the 'stock of the poor,' or from collections. The office of 'collector,' seen above to have been earlier than that of 'overseer,' is shown to have continued by an entry in 1618, when the 'collectors,' as well as the 'overseers,' receive a warrant from the justices. After 1648 poverty seems to have increased in the parish, the 'cesses' for the poor being thenceforth regular and often heavy.

(1) Several presentments from our parish to the Official Court appear about this time in the Act-book. See Appendix B. They are principally for fornication and adultery. That referred to here may have been of George Thompson and Margaret Hall, accused of fornication before marriage. The proceedings in this case may be here noted by way of specimen. Cited to the Court, neither of them appeared; whereupon they were excommunicated, and cited to the next Court, at which Thompson appeared in person, and was, as usual, put upon his oath (the oath ex officio, finally prohibited by the statute of 13 Car. 2, c. 12), and confessed. Had he denied the charge, he would have been required to purge himself at a subsequent Court, i.e. to produce a certain number (four, six, or more) of credible neighbours to swear they believed him innocent. If these compurgatores had satisfied the Court, he would have been acquitted; had he failed in his purgation, he would have been condemned as guilty. The sentence on him and Margaret Hall was one act of penance in their parish church: 'Dominus injunxit eis ad confitendum crimen in ecclesia, &c., in vestibus solitis (i.e. lineis) ante receptionem rerum divinarum, et ad certificandum in prox.' In grosser cases the parties were often required to do such penance on two or three successive Sundays in church, and also on as many market-days in the market-place of Durham. Before the Reformation the discipline was still more severe, fustigation round the church being often enjoined, so as to 'whip the offending Adam out of them.' (See Depositions and Ecclesiastical Proceedings, Surt. Soc., vol. 21.) The following order, found on a loose paper in the Chapter Act-book aforesaid, is interesting as showing the form of penance, often witnessed formerly in Pittington and other parish churches. 'Dunelm. in ecclesia S^{ti} Oswaldi, 17 Febr., 1596. To the curate of Merlington. John Colson of your parish and Mary White, having committed fornication together, are enjoined penance in your church on Sunday next; to stand in their lynyng apparell in tyme of dyvine service, and penitently to confesse their sinne as followeth:—"Whereas we, deare friends, forgetting our duties to Almighty God our Heavenly Father, have by the instigation of the divell committed the detestable synne of fornication, whereby we most rightly have deserved God's heavy wrath and indignation against us, except His mercy do surmount our deserving; But trusting He will be mercifull unto us, and forgive us this and all other our offences which here before you we doe confesse, and are most heartily sorre for the same, we most humbly desier you all to joyne with us in that heavenly praier which

(1) It will be observed that regular action of the Justices against recusants (known to have been severely exercised at this time under James I.) now begins, and is continued in following years. Usually the churchwardens have to attend the sessions twice a year, it being sometimes specified that they are there about their 'recusants.' This, be it further observed, was the year of the Gunpowder Plot, after which a new penal code against recusancy was enacted with additional severities.

(2) The Court of High Commission, which thus is seen to have acted at this time in our diocese in addition to the ordinary jurisdiction of the Spiritual Courts, and of the Justices and Judges of Assize. It was first instituted by the Act of 1 Eliz. c. i., which gave the Queen and her successors power perpetually to appoint commissioners for the exercise of the ecclesiastical jurisdiction which was declared to be thenceforth annexed to the Imperial Crown. For interesting extracts from an Act Book of this Court in the Diocese of Durham between 1636 and 1639, see Surtees Soc. Publ. vol. 34. A still earlier volume of Acts (including the years 1614, 1615, 1616), which has not been published, exists in the Registry of the Dean and Chapter.

(1) That is, the visitation; so called as being the day of seeing, or inspection. It is frequently called, both in this and the other books, the seane, or the scene. The spelling here and in the following year, which are the only instances I have found, suggests the original meaning of the word. Seane would be the vulgar pronunciation. Similarly, in the St. Oswald's book we find 'seane' written for seen, where the accounts are said to have been 'seane and examined.'

'Item M^r Vicar haith unpaid for many lames according to agrement maid with the xij men in for the yeare of oure Lord 1595, as may apeare by this booke, xiiij lames or the value of them.' After 'unpaid for,' the word 'discharged' has been inserted above the line, and is also erased. For the 'agreement' referred to see supra p. 37, and remarks on it in Introduction, p. 7.

(2) Spades were formerly of wood, and shod with iron. The wooden part was called the shell or shelme. So below, A.D. 1624, and frequently in the Book of St. Oswald's. I am referred by the Rev. J. T. Fowler to the 'Ripon Chapter Acts' (Surt. Soc. vol. 64, pp. 373, 384) for mention of 'shod sholes,' and to the St. Cuthbert window in York Minster for pictorial illustration. It is observable in this and other instances how there seem at that time to have been no dealers in ready-made articles of this kind. The churchwardens had to get their wooden spades made by a joiner in the parish, and then to take them to Durham to be 'ironed' by a smith.

(1) This name is written above another (apparently Gresia) which has been erased. Was this some Greek bishop who had come to England, and been fraternally received? 'Gerese' may be meant for Greece, which the scribe, in his ignorance of the country, did not know how to spell, Gresia, originally written, having been meant for Graecia.

(1) The two ancient vills of North and South Pittingdon or Pittington (duæ Petindunæ), till this year so distinguished in this book, are now and henceforth called 'North Pittington' (or, as here, simply 'Pittington') and 'Littleton,' except that in 1615 we find 'Little Pittington.' We thus trace the origin of the modern designation of the Western vill, which is now known only as 'Littleton,' the name of Pittington being confined to the villages which lie north of the church. There are now two Pittingtons: but one of these is a modern pit-village, known as 'New' or 'High Pittington.'

(1) Jewel's controversy with Harding, as appears below from the description of the book, when bought. Its full title was, 'A Replie unto M. Harding's Answers. By perusing whereof the discreet and diligent reader may easily see the weake and unstable grounds of the Roman religion, which of late hath been accounted Catholike: By John Jewel, Bishop of Sarisburie.' Printed 1611. (Published A.D. 1845 by Parker Society.) The bishop (William James) had probably ordered its purchase in all parishes at his Visitation this year. The people of Pittington appear not to have been unanimous in seeing the need of it: for it was only by a majority of the vestry that a rate for it was ordered; nor is there any sign afterwards of such rate having been paid. Still, the book was got, costing the parish 20s. together with 2s. in charges for 'going about it.' It may be observed that in the entry 'M^r Vicar' is underlined, as if to note the fact that the vicar wished the book to be got. The book will be found to have been bought also in this same year for the parish of St. Oswald.

(1) See above, A.D. 1595. The reference is to a road passing through the land held by Mr. Cockson, between Sherborne and Shadforth. The Cocksons appear to have been lessees of the South Pitlington, or Littletown, estate. The family, often mentioned, evidently lived in the parish, perhaps at Littletown, where the farm-house now stands.

(1) It thus appears that none of the books were chained to a pillar, as in many churches, but lay in a chest, somewhere in the church, not in the vestry. The chest in the vestry would contain the money belonging to the parish (Cf. 'Received in the presence of the xii. men, and put into the chist,' A.D. 1587), and probably the church plate.

(2) Thus at this time the gentry of the parish, though not of the 'twelve,' took part in the proceedings of vestry. So all along at Houghton;—'The gentlemen of this parish and the 24.' So also afterwards in this book. Sir H. Anderson has been spoken of in a former note. Mr. Collingwood had at this time lately come into possession of Hetton-on-the-hill, which was one moiety of the Manor of Hetton, held anciently by knights' service under the bishop. In 1608 John Naunton, gent., conveyed this moiety to Henry and William Skayfe of East Witton, Yorks.; and they, by indenture, 13 March 1618, granted the same moiety to Robert Collingwood of London, gent., a younger son of Sir Cuthbert Collingwood of Dalden, Knt. (Surtess' Durham, vol. i. part 2, p. 120).

(1) This spelling of the word leather (denoting the thong, called the baldric, by which the clapper was anciently attached to the bell) throws light on a bell-inscription at Puncknowle, Dorset, referred to as of obscure meaning in Notes and Queries, 3rd S. vii. 137. The inscription is, HETHATWILLPVRCHASHONORS GAYNEMYSTANCIENTLATHERSSTILMAYNTAYNE. The meaning may be that he that would gain honour from bell-ringing must keep the old lathers (i.e. baldrics) in good repair; and some further moral may be intended also. Or it may possibly have been meant as a protest against some new-fangled way of hanging the bell-tongues which had begun to supersede the 'ancient lathers.'

(2) This and the subsequent appearance before the official, in addition to the annual ones at the two visitations, may have been to present Alice Galile. See Appendix B.

(1) Remarkable this year is the number of people applying for relief with briefs or letters patent. They were issued out of Chancery on petition, the patent charges and other costs attending them being very large—a circumstance sufficient to account for their frequency, as they would be thus profitable to the royal exchequer and the Chancery officials, as well as to the applicants. In Burn's Ecclesiastical Law an example is given, showing the various charges, the summary being as follows:—

Collected on 9,986 briefs (i.e. copies sent to various parishes, &c.) . . .	614	12	9

Pittington Parish. ANNO 1620. APRIL 18.—The election of the new churchwardons for this yere following by common consent: John Younger and Richard Heddrington.

(1) See above A.D. 1597, p. 43, note (2). This was the time of the Palatinate war, James I. being now at length induced to send a volunteer force under the Earls of Essex and Oxford in support of his son-in-law, Frederic the Elector Palatine, who had accepted the crown of Bohemia in defence of the Protestant Union. This may have been the immediate cause of the replenishment of the parish armour. See also below, A.D. 1622.

(1) The use of surplices by the parish clerks appears in all these account books, and in the parish of St. Nicholas as late as 1679. It seems to have continued generally, in the North at least, whatever might be the case elsewhere, long after the Reformation. Cf. 'Item an albe which made a rochett for the clarke anno primo Elizabeth.' 'Item an alb, which we made a Rochet of for our clerk A^o Dñi 1565' (Peacock's Church Furniture, pp. 53, 57). I have found proof that, in the year 1679, when the clerk of St. Nicholas was wearing a surplice, it was not so at Southampton. For in a humorous poem by Dr. Speed, a physician there, on Bartholomew Kampster, a barber, and parish clerk of Holy-Roods, we find—

'He's sallied forth from sign of pole and bason,
With clergy-cloak, clean hand, and Sunday face on.'

And the twang of his staves is extolled above

'Their skill who in white surplice sing
Fa la fa sol, anthems, or some such thing.'

(Miscellany Poems, Published by Mr. Dryden, 1718.)

We see further from this poem that parish clerks in those days visited the sick in a clerical capacity; for

'If any well-disposed person is sick,
Batt's sent to: collects cheaper are than physick.'

(1) The 5th of August was kept as the Day of King James' escape from the 'Gowrie Conspiracy,' and was called 'Gowrie day.' See St. Oswald's book, A.D. 1603, and note.

(2) We observe here the beginning of the system of compulsory cessments, which henceforth becomes regular, though not yet, or till 1648, for the relief of the poor. The profits of the church flock were no longer adequate to parochial expenses; the old plan was becoming obsolete, and the flock itself, being 'decayed,' though replenished this year, was sold in 1624.

(1) The earliest mention of the 'house of correction' in addition to the 'gaole.' By 7 Jac. I. c. 4 (A.D. 1610) houses of correction had been required to be built or provided in every county, 'with mills, turns, cards, and suchlike necessary implements, to set rogue, vagabonds, sturdy beggars, or other idle vagrant and disorderly persons, on work.' It was probably owing to the cost of the new house of correction of Durham that we find 24s., instead of 8s. 8d., paid in 1619 and afterwards for 'rogue-money.'

AN. DOM. 1625. MARTII XXV.

It is agreed uppon by the xij of the parish of Pittington the day and yeare above written that the women of the same parish shall have theire seats in the church in manner following.¹

In primis John Swalwell's wife of Ludworth, Simond Lackenby of Shadforth, two roomes or seats ; for two farmes in Pittington belonging to Sir Henry Anderson, two seates ; William Hall's wife of Shadforth, and Raiphe Huntley's wife of the same, have first stall appointed for them.

Item for the second stall William Pearson's wife of Sherburne, Henry Wrangham's wife of Pittingtone, Michael Pattison's wife of Sherburne, M^r Kent's wife of Shadforth, and Richard Matthewe's wife of Pittingtone, and for the north end of the same stall Phillip Haddock's wife of Shadforth.

Item for the third stall William Shadforth's wife of Sherburne, Nicolas Whitfield's wife, Raphe Rutter's wife, John Rawlin's wife, widow Browne, Robert Dixon's wife, and the wife of William Hall of Sherburne.

Item for the fourth stall Raphe Smith's wife, Richard Huntley's wife, William Errington's wife and daughter, Richard Errington's wife, and 3 seats in the stall for Sir Henry Anderson's maid servants.

(1) These notices about stalls, inserted by the vicar Richard Thursby in 1625, are interesting as showing that it was not till that year that women—and then, as a rule, wives only—had seats assigned them (see Introduction) ; and also how here, as elsewhere, the right in assigned seats implied the power of exchange or sale. In illustration of the 'suits in law' alluded to as likely to arise from 'contending for the first places,' the case of Elinor Richmond and Elinor Hutchinson before the Court of the Officialty in 1602 is given in Appendix B. Such contentions about seats in church appear to have begun at a date long anterior to the Reformation. Cf. 'Item audivimus quod propter sedilia in ecclesia rixantur multoties parochiani, duobus vel pluribus unum sedile vindicantes (vindicantibus ?) ; propter quod grave scandalum et divinum sæpius impeditur officium,'—Wilkins, Concil. ad an. 1287.

Whereas some of the women were not content with any roomes in the stalls but the first, contending for the first places, to avoid suits in law and to restraints the pride of such, it was agreed uppon by the twelve of the parish of Pittingtone that every one should take their place as they came, such as came first to the church should have the first place in the stall appointed for them. Aug. the 12th, 1625.

Memorandum that Michael Pattison of Sherburne did buy of Henry Cooke the seat which was appointed for his wife in the second stall.

Whereas the fifth stall was builded by William Hall of Shadforth and the Vicar of Pittington, it was agreed on by the twelve of the parish that they 2 shall have the same stall. William Errington of Shadforth did exchange the roome which he had in the fourth stall with the Vicar to have a roome in the fifth stall.

Churchwardens elected for the parish of Pittington, April the 19th, 1625: William Pearson, Raphe Huntley.¹ Overseers for the poore: Simon Lackenby, and Henry Cooke.

In primis it is agreed uppon by the twelve of this parish that a csesement of 6*d*. the pound shall be levied for the payment of the house of correction and the gaole, and for other uses concerneing the church, every yeare when the churchwardens enter into theirre office.²

Receipts for this yeere 1625.—In primis received for a

(1) This Ralph Huntley, chosen churchwarden that year, whose name has often appeared (among the twelve in 1618 and 1629, but erased in the list of 1633), was summoned before the Court of High Commission, A.D. 1635, for having been clandestinely and irregularly married in his own house to Frances his wife 'by an olde man whoe he thinketh was a popish priest,' and for having had his four children, the issue of that marriage, 'baptized privately in his owne house, and not accordinge to the lawes.' He confessed, was committed to prison for one month, fined 50*l*., and required to bring his children to be baptized openly in his parish church. Having at length produced a certificate of such baptism from Mr. George Shaw, Vicar of Pittington, January 10, 1637, he was dismissed, paying the costs; and in 1638 (March 5), his fine of 50*l*. was mitigated to 3*l*. (Acts of the High Commission Court, Surt. Soc. Publ. vol. 34, p. 114.) He thus appears to have been at heart a recusant, though conforming outwardly, as probably others in this and other parishes for a long time were.

(2) It thus appears that a fixed annual rate of 6*d*. in the pound was contemplated, to take the place of the profits of the Church flock which had been sold in the previous year. It will be seen afterwards that a much heavier assessment soon came to be usually required.

An order for the highwayes within the parish of Pittington, April 19th, 1625: Simone Lackenby and Henry Cooke, overseers for the highways.

It is agreed upon by the twelve of this parish that the overseers for the highways shall appoint such as have waines or

(1) Mr. Ralph Simpson was lessee of the Manor of Hallgarth after Sir Henry Anderson; the lease, according to Surtees, being reserved to him by the D. and C. in 1626. He was a benefactor to the Stock of the Poor in 1632.

(2) This year was that of the accession of Charles I.; and the 'booke for the thankegiveing' was probably the form corresponding to that still printed at the end of the Book of Common Prayer, under the authority of a Royal Warrant, to be used on 'the day on which Her Majesty began her happy reign.' Such a service was first appointed on the accession of Charles I. It was disused under Charles II., but revived in a new form on the accession of James II. Discontinued under William III., it was again revived on the accession of Queen Anne, when the present form was compiled, partly from that of James II., and partly new.

draughts and labouring men to come to mend the highwayes in this parish, and repaire the same where the same shall stand in neede, att such times as are appointed by the Statute in that case provided.

It is agreed uppon by the twelve and the overseers have appointed the 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, and one and twentieth days of May next comeing for the amending of all the wayes within the parish of Pittington.

Item it is agreed upon by the twelve of this parish, that, for the provision of bread and wine, every communicant shall pay one penny to the churchwardens, and that every maister of the family shall pay for himselfe, wife, children, and servants.¹

Rest to be paid to the new churchwardens, 3 l. 6 s. 3 d.

(1) These are the only instances throughout the book of money collected at the offertory for the poor entering with the churchwardens' accounts. It will be seen that this year it was at once distributed after each collection. There are no signs this year of communions except at Michaelmas and Easter, owing, perhaps, to difficulty in meeting the cost of wine. Observe the entry, 'Allowance for wine more than 2d. a house.' It may be supposed that many householders had not paid their 2d. (See Introduction.)

(2) In 1631 Charles I. agreed to aid Gustavus Adolphus with an army of 6,000 infantry, which the Marquess of Huntley was employed to levy. The provision may have been for this purpose.

(1) This, the first valuation of the rental of the parish, was made with view to assessment for rates, now become a regular system. For a later valuation see A.D. 1689. Observe the heavy rates this year (though still heavier in some years afterwards), amounting to 4s. in the pound, owing partly to the flagging of the church (now probably for the first time), to the repairs required in the belfry frame—repairs only, for the present frame as a whole is more ancient, and probably original—and the King's ship-money, as to which see note following.

(2) King Charles' notorious ship-money was levied this year, having been in 1634 charged on the seaport towns, and in 1635 extended to the country under writs to the Sheriffs, to aid in furnishing the King's ships. It appears from the disbursements that wood for the purpose was got from Witton Park, and that the whole cost to the parish was 2l.

(2) The use here for the first time of the word Minister instead of Vicar may be taken as a sign of the times, especially as the word now generally used by the common people in the diocese of Durham is not Minister, but Priest. The Vicar was George Shaw (1631-62), who probably had puritanical tendencies. He retained the living undisturbed during the Commonwealth.

(1) Of. 'holly bread silver,' A.D. 1640. Holy bread, or the holy loaf, was the name before the Reformation for the loaf or cake offered at the altar by parishioners in turn, which was blessed, and afterwards distributed; the usage being the remnant of the ancient one of the Eucharist itself being consecrated out of bread offered by the worshippers. Of. Surtees Soc. Publ. vol. 21, p. 281. 'About 30 years agoe and sene, the inhabitants [of St. Margaret's in Durham], according as their course fell, have brought every Sonday ther hallybread caike in a towell open on ther brest, and laid yt downe upon the ende of the hye alter of St. Oswald's, and 1½^d in money also with the said caik; and the clerke toke the caik, and the proctor the silver; and after the caik was hallowed, the said clerke cut off a part of the said caike, cauld the hally breid cantle, to gyve to ther next neighbour, whose course was to gyve the holly bread the next Sonday.' In the rubric after the Communion Office of 1549 (the clergy being then required to find the elements at their own cost), it is ordered that 'the parishioners of every parish shall offer every Sonday, at the time of the Offertory, the just valour and price of the holy loaf (with all such money and other things as were wont to be offered with the same) to the use of their Pastors and Curates, and that in such order and course as they were wont to find and pay the said holy loaf.' These entries in our book show the long continued use of the old term, 'hallybread,' as applied to the elements of Communion themselves. So also in the St. Oswald's Book (1610-20), 'Paid for holly brede for the Communion.'

1638 : the which day there was a ceasment aggreed upon for a grote a pound.

Item disbursed by the churwardens of this foresaid summe

(1) This is the last reference to any ecclesiastical jurisdiction. On July 4, 1641, the King at last consented to pass an Act abolishing the Court of High Commission, which Act was so framed as to take away the coercive jurisdiction of all Spiritual Courts, which consequently remained in abeyance till its revival by 13 Car. II., 12. In the parish of Pittington, however, the cessation of discipline seems to have led to no remissness on the part of the parish. Communion continue to be celebrated, and the elements provided, churchwardens are annually elected, though not sworn, and cesses laid for the reparation of the church. Not so, it will be seen, with regard to Communion at least, in the parishes of Houghton and St. Oswald's. It is remarkable in the Pittington book that it is not till 1660, the year of the Restoration, that all mention of cesses for Church purposes ceases, nothing but the annual election of Churchwardens and Overseers being recorded till 1686, after which date provision for the poor is still the only matter that enters into these accounts.

Memorandum, the 6 day of Maij 1642, William Hall had 23 s. of mony in his hand which he is to deliver to the overseers for this yeere.

The disbursements of Rich. Cotes and Mathew Smith, Churchwardens of this parish anno 1642, for the said yeere.

(1) This was probably for the maintenance of the Scotch Covenanters. On August 20, 1640, they crossed the Tweed, and, after defeating Lord Conway at Newburn on the Tyne, entered the Bishopric of Durham. 'At first they behaved with studied moderation, and professed their intention to pay for everything they wanted, but, finding the two counties of Northumberland and Durham at their mercy, they became less scrupulous, exacted a sum of 850*l.* daily for their maintenance, seized the tithes and rents of the clergy, and supplied themselves with coals and forage at their discretion. In these circumstances the bishop thought it proper to retire into Yorkshire. Walter Balcanqual, the dean, and the rest of the clergy, also fled.' (Diocesan Histories, S.P.C.K.: Durham, by J. L. Low, M.A.)

(1) The 'church houses' were three tenements in Hallgarth Street, held by the parish of St. Oswald, subject to a fee-farm rent of 12s. a year to the Dean and Chapter, the revenue accruing from which was available for church purposes. The property has been sold in recent times, and the proceeds invested for the benefit of the church, yielding now an income of 30% a year. It was on the west side of Hallgarth Street, immediately on the right on entering the street from Church Lane, which leads to it from the church. One of the tenements still retains an ancient character. Certain houses were similarly held by the chapelry of St. Margaret's, which have also been sold in like manner for the benefit of the chapelry, which is now a separate parish.

(1) Here 'staule' seems to denote what in the Pittington book is called a room in a stall; i.e. one place in a pew, not the whole pew. But in this book also a pew is elsewhere called a stall. For a review of the ancient custom with regard to appropriated seats in church, see Introduction.

(2) Distinct from stalls, and for the poorer sort, 1d. only being paid for them. Stalls, in the sense of pews, even at this early date, were already provided with doors in St. Oswald's church, as appears from a subsequent entry in this same year.

(3) This would be at Easter, when all parishioners were expected to communicate, called afterwards 'the great and general Communion.' It was of ancient custom that all, including inhabitants of subject chapelries, should communicate in the mother church at Easter. In a treasurer's roll of Ripon Minster, as early as 1401-2, we find that three bushels of wheat were bought for the Maundy and 'pro comunione omnium parochianorum contra festum Pasche.' A remnant of the ancient usage at Ripon may be recognised in the retention till the year 1868 of celebrations at 5 A.M. and 7 A.M., as well as after matins. The writer of this note remembers well how his revered old friend, the Rev. Robert Poole (priest vicar, and afterwards minor canon of Ripon, from 1824 to 1872) contended zealously, and with success, for continuing both these early celebrations, which Dean Erskine would fain have dropped. Unhappily that at 5 A.M. was afterwards discontinued by Dean McNeile, though it used to be attended by thirty or forty persons, mostly poor people. It was regularly resorted to in Mr. Poole's time by two persons (one John Mudd and his wife) from the chapelry of Bishop Monkton, some three miles distant from the Minster, whose pious practice was probably a remnant of a general one in former days.

(1) In the Prayerbook of 1559 the reception of Holy Communion by the newly-married persons on the day of their marriage was obligatory; not merely, as in the present rubric, directed as 'convenient.'

(2) The use of surplices by parish clerks appears in all these books. See Pitington Book, A.D. 1620, p. 79 and note.

(3) Shrove Tuesday. It thus appears that there had been celebrations throughout Lent, as well as the 'great' one on Easter Day. There is another also on April 30, and also at Christmas. No others are mentioned this year. See Introduction as to the frequency of Communions.

(4) See previous note as to stalls with doors.

(1) It will be observed that between this year (1580) and the year 1595 no accounts are entered. The reason is this. All till the year 1602 had been copied into this book from an older one that was 'frett and chafed,' as appears from an entry in the accounts of that year. The purpose of such copy being made was apparently to preserve a record of the circumstances of a recent suit in the Consistory Court against the churchwardens of St. Margaret, who had refused to pay, as had been accustomed, a moiety of the expenses of the parish church in addition to their own. It was alleged in support of the claim upon them that from 1580 to 1595 such moiety had been always paid without dispute (as appears from a memorandum to that effect elsewhere in this book); and hence it was thought sufficient to copy from the old book the accounts of the year 1580 in proof of the undisputed payment at that date, and then to pass to those of 1595, when objections began to be made, the nature of such objections being also noted in the margin.

This was not the first dispute of the same nature between the parish church and the chapelry; there appears to have been one of old standing between them. An earlier instance is given in 'Depositions and Ecclesiastical Proceedings from 1311 to the Reign of Elizabeth,' Surtess Society's Publications, vol. xxi. p. 276. The depositions are there given of witnesses called in behalf of the churchwardens of St. Margaret's in a suit between them and the churchwardens of St. Oswald's in the Consistory Court. They depose, among other things, that they understood the inhabitants of the chapelry to have had granted to them, by licence from the convent of Durham, the right of having all sacraments and rites of the Church in their own chapel, and burying their dead in their own yard; but that they were still in the parish of St. Oswald's, and had been accustomed to come to St. Oswald's church, as their 'head kirke,' every year on St. Oswald's day, and that, 'in time of latten service,' one of the churchwardens of St. Margaret's 'haith used upon Palm Sunday to bear one of the 4 pools over the Sacrament.' Further, that they had ever had the right of burial in the churchyard of St. Oswald's in case of need, and had buried their dead there, upon the south side of the same, during a plague, 'within this 40 years,' 'for that they of St. Margaret's wolde not smatter ther own church yard with thoise that then died in the plage.' The part of the churchyard in which inhabitants of the chapelry had been buried is defined by one deponent as 'betwixt the two waies on the southwest syde of the church, the one going to the myln, and the other to the ancarhouse.' (The Ancarhouse, or Ankeridge, formerly church property, was on the south of the churchyard, and entered therefrom, probably where there is still a walled-up doorway. The waie to the myln would be the path still leading to Prebends' Bridge, on the banks of the river.) They also acknowledged their liability to do 'ther dewtie accustomed to the said St. Oswald's, as unto the head kirke,' consisting in reparation of the south aisle of the church and of the south-west corner of the churchyard from the corner of the Ankeridge to the well-banks close to St. Oswald's well (this well being under the western bank above the river, about opposite the end of the south aisle of the church); in 'payinge yerely to the parish clerke of St. Oswald's, upon St. Margaret's day, ayther 6d. or 4d. and his dyner'; and in formerly offering 'hallibred caike' to the parish church (the several families in the chapelry taking the duty in rotation), partly in money and partly in kind, at the cost of 3d. or 2½d. for every Sunday; and, since the cessation of 'the latten service,' contributing to the cost of bread and wine for Communion. One of the deponents, Thomas Wayman, stated further the origin of the difference between the parish church and the chapelry, saying that 'his father, William Wayman, being a churchwarden of St. Margaret's about 50 years agoo, was keeper of one of the kees of a chiste standing in St. Oswald church, wherein was the jewells apperteyninge the said church,' and that, on the occasion of a marriage, 'they of St. Oswald's syd, having ther key redly and wantynge the key of St. Margaret, byrst open the lock; whereupon grew a groudge, and haith contynewed ever sence bytwixt the said parishes, and gave occasion to the said inhabitants of St. Margaret's to withdrawe ther accustomed dewties, except hollybread silver, which haith bein accustomed paid.' The depositions thus summarised were made A.D. 1675-6. If they were correct, it would seem that the people of St. Margaret's were justified by ancient custom, as well as reason, in refusing to pay a full moiety of all the expenses of the parish church. However, Dr. Colemore, the Chancellor, decided against them, as will be seen below.

(1) From the price paid for these stalls it appears that they were entire pews. We observe that transference of pews could not take place without the leave of the churchwardens, and payment made to them.

(1) Apparently thus. The churchwardens of St. Margaret's supplied the ladder, and charged for it; those of St. Oswald's objected to the charge on the ground that the former were jointly responsible with themselves for the expenses of the parish church; whereupon the inhabitants of the chapelry were moved to raise the whole question of their alleged responsibility.

(1) Thus it appears that the accounts as above given, with the marginal notes appended, had been prepared by the churchwardens of St. Margaret's for submission to the Consistory Court. The award of Dr. Colmore, the Official Principal, dated February 23, 1600, was as follows:—'That the churchwardens of St. Margret's yearly for ever, within 14 days after the generall account made by St. Oswald's, contribute and pay to St. Oswald's churchwardens the one halfe parte of all such charges as shall be defraied and bestowed upon any necessarrie or requisite reparations of the said church of St. Oswald's, or other thinges which the inhabitants of the said parish are by law or custome to provide or doe for the due administration of the sacraments and other laudable rites and services in the said church

(the rents, revenewes, and other money and receiptes due to the said church being first yearly expended and disbursed in the premisses), the churchwardens of S^t Oswald's to give S^t Margrets tenne dayes notice before a generall account be made, that they may take lawfull exception thereto or any particulars thereof.' It was further ordered that the churchwardens should pay before the ensuing 24th of May the arrears of such moieties as were due for recent years, the charges against them to be taxed by the Chancellor or his deputy in case of any disagreement; also that if any controversy should hereafter arise in and concerning any the promises other than the said arrearages, all churchwardens for the time being, and all inhabitants of the parish and chapelry, should stand to such order as the Dean of Durham, or in his absence the Vice Dean, should set down; and that if any either churchwardens or inhabitants, should fail to perform and observe such order, suits should be commenced for the same in the names of and between the churchwardens of the church and chapelry respectively as parties, all inhabitants of the church or chapelry against whose churchwardens sentence might be given being liable, by cessment or otherwise, to repay their churchwardens the sums they had been condemned to pay, with the costs of the suit.

This award is entered at the end of the volume; and there is the following note, made at a subsequent date:—'I observe that for and ever since the yeare A.D. 1580 to Dr. Colemore's award anno 1600, and since that untill the yeare 1639, St. Oswald's received halfe her disbursements (over and above her receipts) of S^t Margret's, who allwayes made their exceptions, but never against either bread and wine or bell or materials for bells; the greatest exception was for the church wall and gates next Elvet, urging they kept up a particular part of their owne, therefor not to contribute to thers. George Racket's 16 d. for his ladder occasioned the suite.'

(1) '1603. Burialles. Aug. 19. Richard Heyrine and Cuthbart Williamson, bothe executed at Driborne.' St. Oswald's Parish Register. Who they were, and why executed, is a question that invites inquiry. Their being buried within the church shows that they were not ordinary criminals.

(2) James I., before leaving Scotland, had applied to the English Council for the Crown jewels for his queen. Not having received them, he left her behind to follow him afterwards.

(3) The anniversary of the 'Gowrie conspiracy.' King James's own account of it was as follows. Being at the royal palace of Falkland on August 5, 1600, as he was about to mount his horse for hunting, between ringing at those two tymes, 3 s. 4 d. Item for writinge about the fite daie of August by a commandment from oure Kinge all the comunycants and non-comunycants in our parish, and with other chargis at that tyme, as the clark for writinge of all

6 and 7 A.M., he was accosted by Alexander, Master of Ruthven, and brother to the Earl of Gowrie, who informed him that a countryman had been found near Perth on the previous evening with a pot of coined gold hidden under his cloak, and was now lodged in Gowrie Castle, where the king was invited to go and examine him. About noon, when the hunt was over, the king went with Ruthven to Gowrie Castle, when the earl came out to meet him, and entertained him at dinner. The king was annoyed at being kept an hour waiting for his repast, and then by finding it but 'sorry cheer;' and alarmed also by perceiving the earl pensive, often whispering over his shoulder to one person or another, and going in and out of the room. After dinner the Master of Ruthven conducted him up a 'turnpike,' through two or three chambers, the doors of which he locked behind him, into the 'gallery chamber.' Therein was a man, who proved to be the earl's steward, with a dagger in his girdle. Ruthven then told the king that he must die, and proceeded to bind his hands with a garter. The king, however, struggled to the window, and though Ruthven thrust his fingers into his mouth to prevent his crying out, succeeded in shrieking, 'I am murdered.' The cry reached the ears of his attendants, who forced an entry into the castle, and killed both the Master of Ruthven and the earl. Such was the story told by James himself in 'A discourse of the unnatural and vile conspiracy attempted by John Earl of Gowrie and his brother against his Majesty's person at St. Johnstown (Perth) upon Tuesday the 5th of August, 1600,' printed at London by Valentine Sims. Its truth, however, seems to have been doubted at the time. The clergy, being required to read the 'discourse' from the pulpit, refused to do so; and one of them Mr. Robert Bruce, when urged to comply, said that, though he respected his Majesty's account of the affair, he would not answer for believing it; and for this he was deprived and banished. The populace of Perth, too, are said to have uttered 'most irreverent and undutiful speeches against his Majesty,' believing him to be a doer rather than a sufferer (Galloway's discourse before the King). James, on his accession to the English throne, was doubtless glad to take advantage of his acknowledged supremacy over the English Church, and to find the English clergy more compliant than the Scotch ministers had been. The day appears to have been regularly kept in subsequent years, not only by the ringing of bells, but also by a special service. A list of books belonging to the church of St. Giles, Durham, in the register book of that parish, includes 'Liber continens gratiarum actionem pro liberatione regis Jacobi a conspiratione Gowriana.' See also the entry in the Pitlington Book A.D. 1622: 'Item paid for 2 books for the 5 of August.' The form (as printed by Robert Barker, A.D. 1606) was entitled 'A Fourme of Prayer with Thanksgiving to be used by all the Kings Majesties loving Subjects, being the day of his Highnesse happy deliverance from the Traiterous and bloodie attempt of the Earl of Gowry and his brother,' &c., &c. (Bull and Auvache's list of books on sale, No. 860, in which the book is described as 'black letter, VERY SCARCE.')

Rawlinge, John Heddon, and others.

(1) The work done about the church in this and the following year included the flagging of the floor, possibly for the first time; for the floors of churches appear to have long continued unflagged, the bare earth being strewn with rushes or straw. Pitlington Church was flagged in 1635, Houghton in 1604, the expense being borne in the latter parish by the Rector, Dr. Hutton.

He had been implicated (being then about 30 years of age) in the revival of forbidden ritual in the Cathedral during the 'Rebellion of the Earls' in 1569. Cited afterwards before Dr. Robert Swift, Vicar-General and Official Principal, in his Consistory Court, he confessed that he had been present at masses, 'doing and exhibiting such reverences as others did,' had 'sung at mattens, evenson, anthomes, and procession after the crose,' had heard the priest Holmes 'preiching against the servie and religion of this realme, commending the other,' and had, with the rest who were present in cathedral, 'knelt down to take absolucion at his (Holmes's) hands, which he pronouncide in the pope Pius' name.' He pleaded that he had already been corrected by the Dean for these offences, saying that 'the things by hym confessed he this deponent is sori for, and he belyvith certainly that all his offenses heretofore by hym confessed ys pardoned by the Quene's majestie's free pardon.' Expenses laid forth and disbursed by Nicholas Maison, Roger Carter, Michaell Wheatley, and John Richardson, churchwardens of S^t Oswould's in Durham, elected the 29 Martij 1608

(1) This year are the first instances recorded in this book of persons being allowed to build their own stalls in vacant parts of the church, paying for the room occupied. Cuthbert Spenie and others appear from the price paid to have built stalls for themselves only; but John Richardson erected a family pew. Such pews seem now to have been coming into fashion. In 1603-4 two persons, Pilkinton and Lambton, had paid 1s. each for stalls for themselves and their wives; and in 1606-7, Mr. Salvin had paid the same sum for a stall, which may be concluded from the price to have been for his family.

(2) 'Portch' here denotes a portion of one of the aisles within the church, probably an ancient chantry chapel. So also below, A.D. 1614-15, 'the portch in the north ally.' Cf. 'My body to be buried in the churche of Kellowe in my Porch of o^r Ladye there betwixt my Wife there and the Alter ende.' (Will of John Trollop, of Thornley, 1522. Durham Wills, Surtees &c. vol. ii. 105.) But afterwards, in the expenses of this same year, and elsewhere, the word 'porch' is used also in its usual modern sense.

It formed part of the extensive parish of St. Oswald, and it would seem from this entry that there had been a celebration of the Holy Communion there for the distant parishioners, though where held does not appear. There was no chapel of ease there; yet the quantity of wine procured seems too large for a private Communion of the sick.

Rec. the daie and yeare above wryttin of the Churchwardens

(1) It thus appears, as in other years about this time, that Communiones were celebrated daily from Palm Sunday to Easter Day inclusive, though not, as in 1580, throughout Lent, and also about Christmas time, and in some years at Michaelmas, but not apparently at any other time during the year; and also that there was usually no celebration on Christmas Day itself. This year the Christmas celebration was on December 28, which was probably the Sunday before Christmas. In the following year, it was on January 1. Perhaps Christmas Day was associated in men's minds with revelry rather than devotion; and the Puritan objection to the religious observance of Christmas may have come in. They did not understand being religiously merry and joyful: a gloomy Sabbath was their ideal of a day of worship.

(1) It thus appears that the owners of pews had by this time come to have a recognised permanent right in them, for the yielding up of which they could claim compensation. Pews were regarded as a sort of leasehold property. Instances of the sale of stalls, so as to involve such right, will be found in the year succeeding this.

(1) The whole of the north aisle appears to have been for the first time filled with pews this year, one, occupying half of what was called the porch in that aisle, being built by Mr. Hilyard at his own charge, and the rest by the churchwardens, to be sold by them for the use of families. The erection of these pews by the churchwardens appears in the disbursements of this year. The supposed right in pews thus purchased of the churchwardens, however really illegal, appears markedly from the memorandum, added in 1624, about one of the stalls which had been sold to Mr. Maddeson, and was by him made over in 1624 to Mr. Petifer and his house for ever. No faculties appear at this date to have been applied for.

(1) What is meant by a mapp: ? Mappa means properly a napkin. Was it a pulpit cloth, or a napkin for the use of preachers ?

(2) It appears to have been usual to have parish coffins for the burial of the poor. They would be used for carrying the corpse to the church and to the grave, where it would be interred uncoffined. The direction of the rubric to cast earth on 'the body,' not on the coffin, is held to be thus accounted for. When the Yorkshire Architectural Society visited Howden in Yorkshire, August 25, 1885, a parish coffin of oak was found there, still preserved, though dilapidated. It was of the usual coffin shape, but with the ends made for a coped lid. On it was the date 1664, and 'R. Y.' On one end was an iron ring. I am informed that at Easingwold, also, a parish coffin remains. There may be other instances, though undoubtedly rare. Such coffins would not be likely to be preserved when their use had gone out. The following entries in the 'Leverton Churchwardens' Accounts' (Archæologia, xli. 333-370), are illustrative. '1524. Recevyd of Alyce the wyff of John Pychyll for the legacye of Thomas Hardye hyr son to y^e chyrche warke (&c.) iiij s. x d. Recevyd of y^e said Alyce Pychyll for a cheste y^e he was buryed in, xx d.' Here the 'cheste,' or coffin, in which the man was buried appears to have been contrary to the usual custom. Also: '1537. To Thomas Carter for helpeing of the keystes in the churche for to bere [bear ?] folk in . . . ij d.' This entry implies that several 'chestes,' or coffins, probably of different sizes, were kept in the church for carrying people to the grave in. Hearne says that burial without coffins was common about 1664, except in the cases of persons of rank.—Reliq. Hearnianæ, ii. 534. An amusing evidence of the old custom of burying bodies uncoffined

Rec. of James Stoddert for his stall rome in the second stall next to the polpitt, iiij d. Somme rec., xxxix s. vj d.

(1) It has not been thought necessary to print in full the accounts of all succeeding years. Such entries as represent only ordinary receipts and expenditure, recurring year by year, are now omitted, as throwing no further light on the history of the parish and the state of things. Among these are the customary receipts for stalls and lairstalls (which continue till 1728), except in cases where there is some peculiarity about them. Similarly, among the disbursements, those for ordinary parochial expenses, which are in no way noteworthy, and payments to the clerk (which continue annually till 1644) for writing the names of the Communicants. All disbursements in connection with the bells are, however, still given till 1628, the continued attention they seem to have required, in this as well as other parishes, being remarkable. Also all that relate to Communions, and to the action of the Courts.

(1) There being no entries of disbursement for new organ pipes, it may be supposed that the organ was now disused. Of. below, A.D. 1632: 'For five yardes and a halfe of square sealing (ceiling) to the orgaine frame'; from which it would seem that the frame only of the organ remained, and that it was covered with a ceiling for the sake of decent appearance. Other signs of puritanical tendencies at this period may perhaps be detected in the 'sermonde bell' (probably for a sermon apart from the regular services), first mentioned A.D. 1614–15, and for tolling which the sexton received extra payment; and in the hourglass, provided in the same year.

The occasion was a contagious malady, the most destructive, it was asserted, in the memory of man, in the first year of Charles I., which prevented his solemn entry into London with his newly-married queen.

*Memorandum at the end of the book.*¹—From the yeare 1580 for fifteene yeare to the yeare 1595 the halfe of all paymentes for St Oswolde's parish church was paid by the churchwardens of St Margretes Crosse withoute opposition or contradiction, exceptions taken for five yeares to the yeare 1600 by reason of

(1) This memorandum is inserted here to account for the moiety due from St. Margaret's being henceforth usually entered as payable only, not as paid; and for the cessation of spiritual discipline by the Courts beyond the official's usual visitations at Michaelmas and Easter. It was not, however, till 1641 that the legal jurisdiction of these Courts ceased. See Pittington Book, p. 102, note (1).

a ladder lent by Geo. Raket of Crosgate to whiten S^t Oswoldes, for which was charged 16 d., but all that 5 yeares Crosgate paid one full halfe; whereupon Dr. Colmer decreed Feb^r 23^d, 1600, that for the future Crosgate churchwardens should pay the halfe of all church expences with S^t Oswoldes after the house rentes and larestalles were expended; which decree was observed punctually for 30 yeares to the year 1630 with true payment of the halfe and by subscribeing and allowing the accounts witnessed. Aboute this tyme the Scotts invaded, the Spirituall Court ceased, and the civill warrs broke oute. The arreares of the halfe—due by S^t Margrettes taken notice of to the yeare 1644.

FROM EASTER 1631 TO EASTER 1632.

Bells rung: 5 Nov. and 27 March.

Visitations: The Seene at Easter, 2 s. 4 d. Fees in M^r Hutton's court at Michaelmas, 1 s. 10 d.

Communions: To M^r Derham for wine for the Communion for the whole yeare, as appears by his acquittance, 1 l. 9 s. 0 d. For 2 quarts more of wine, 1 s. 2 d.

To John Fenwick for laying downe xiiij lairstalls according to a former agreement, 4 s. 4 d. For two frames for two formes to stand at the Communion table for the churchwardens and others to knele at the Communion, 6 s. 8 d. For kersey to cover them, 5 s. To Stephen Arundell for fringe and other necessities, and for making them upp, as appears by his acquittance, 10 s.¹

(1) The providing of forms or desks, covered with kersey and adorned with fringes, for the churchwardens and others to kneel at, and apparently intended to stand permanently near the Holy Table, may possibly be significant of the restoration of the latter from the body of the church to a fixed position at the east end of the church. Such restoration was being urged, and partially effected, about this time under the influence of Laud. The kneeling desks in this case may have been placed parallel with the north and south walls at each side of the table, as such desks are placed in the chapel of Magdalen College, Oxford (and probably at other colleges), for such as have attained the degree of B.D. to kneel at during reception. It does not, however, follow, if this were so, that the Holy Table was as yet placed 'altarwise,' i.e. against the east wall with its ends to the north and south. (See Scudamore's Notitia Eucharistica, Section VI.) Perhaps, however, the procuring of two 'stool-mats' for the Holy Table in 1626-27 may be taken as an intimation that it was so, suggesting the position of the clergy at the ends of the Table which till recently was almost universal.

(1) This is the only mention of frankincense in this book. It is mentioned more than once in the St. Nicholas book, as will be seen.

(2) In this year only the Holy Table is called the Altar. It may be a sign of reaction against Puritanism. See above, A.D. 1631-32, for the probable position of the Holy Table at that time. It will be observed that after this year all visitations cease. For the reason see Pittington Book, p. 102, note (1).

[From this year till 1652 the accounts are discontinued. But in another part of the book there is a record of the churchwardens, overseers, and surveyors of the highways, elected yearly on Easter Tuesday from 1639 to 1648 inclusive. In 1643 there is this entry:—'The names of such as are appointed to take the accountps of the churchwardens for divers yeares by past: Sir Tho. Swinbourne, Mr Robert Collingwood, Mr Geo. Martin, Mr William Sidgwick, Mr Clement Richardson.' In 1645 there is no record. In 1646 no churchwardens or overseers are specified, and for the first time we find mention of 'grassmen'; thus, 'Grassmen: Ch. Shacklock, Mathew Lidell, John Kenleson, George Hunter.—31 Martij, 1646: Itt is ordered by the 24th thatt the Grasemen for the yeares 1644

(1) It will be observed that, there having been only two celebrations of Holy Communion in the church during the preceding year, in this year and till 1662 they cease altogether, though a few sick persons still received at home. There was a similar cessation during the Commonwealth at Houghton. Not so at Pitlington, where George Shaw, the vicar, who retained his living undisturbed, continued them as had been usual.

and 1645 shall make accompt of all receipts and disbursements to the new elected Grasemen, and sometymes within 20 dayes next ensewing.' Further—

All the officers above named are from tyme to tyme to make there account to the 24th, and the Connstables are to bringe in the order against undersettes (?) that itt may be entred in the booke.

[The accounts that follow, from 1652 to 1666, are given in full, so as to illustrate the period of the Commonwealth and the Restoration. It will be observed that there is no notice of any expenditure for Communion (except the small sum of 3 s. 10 d. during the whole of the three years 1658, 1659, 1660) till 1662, the year of the Act of Uniformity. Nor, during the later years of the Commonwealth at least, does much seem to have been spent on the church, which, from the cost of repair in 1661-2, appears to have been much neglected. It is significant, however, that two new hour-glasses were got. It may be observed further that, though visitations had ceased, the churchwardens still had their accustomed dinner at the expense of the parish twice a year.]

[In the years that follow only unusual or significant entries have been extracted from the accounts. It is to be understood that (unless otherwise specified) the receipts continue of the usual character, including lairstalls till 1729; that Archidiaconal visitations are held yearly at Easter and Michaelmas at least, and from time to time presentments made; that Communion continue to be celebrated three or four times a year, the 'great and general' ones being at Easter; but that there are no longer, as in former years, payments made for seats or pews. The only notices with regard to them are entered separately at the end of the book, and will be found below.]

(1) The battle of Sedgmoor was fought on July 6, 1685, soon after which Monmouth was taken in New Forest. The thanksgiving day next mentioned, July 26, would be for his defeat.

(2) Prince James Edward, born June 10, 1687. The previous ringing (probably under orders from the Court) for the queen's pregnancy, is significant of the desire felt to give publicity to the fact, which many doubted. It is well known that the child, when born, was supposed by some to be supposititious.

(3) Observe the impartiality of the church bells. William and Mary were proclaimed on February 13, and crowned on April 11, 1689.

(1) It is amusing to observe how the churchwardens persisted in feasting at visitations at the expense of the parish. Till 1671 the cost of a visitation dinner had not exceeded 8s. 6d., after which date it gradually increased, amounting in 1674 to 1l. 14s. 10d. In 1683 there was a special order of the vestry, restricting the cost to 20s. But the churchwardens seem to have made light of this order, spending afterwards even more than before.

(1) It is to be observed that in this city parish the Mayor always presided over vestry meetings, and, 'with others of the said parish,' signed the accounts and the orders of vestry. There was here, as in other parishes in the diocese, a select vestry of twenty-four; but we find no allusion to it till the year 1687. See 'Rules to be observed' in that year. A list of members thereof is given for the first time in the year 1692.

(2) 'Hole House Farm. There is a farm (so-called) stated to be situate within the parish of Wolsingham which is supposed to have been given for the purpose of providing out of the rents thereof for the repairs of the parish church of St. Nicholas. By whom or at what period this was given is unknown; but it would appear that it has been demised from time to time since the year 1699. According to a statement made some years ago, it is described as consisting of a barn and stable, formerly a dwelling-house, and about eight acres of land, known as Dale Fields. The farm is now said to be let at a yearly rent of 20l. This money is carried to the general account of the churchwardens.'—Carlton's Hist. Durham City Charities, p. 131.

(1) The payment for seats in pews (i.e. for first entry, not for annual rent) was in some cases, as we find ordered in the parish of Pittington, 4d. a seat, but more frequently 1s., the charge probably depending on the kind of pew, or its situation in the church. Pews in the organ loft (which was kept locked, see below) were evidently select, 1s. being always charged for a seat in them.

(1) 'Landmale—a reserved rent charged upon a piece of land by the chief lord of the fee, or a subsequent mesne owner.'—Wright's Provincial Dict. This sum of 1s. 9d. was paid under the same head yearly.

(2) See p. 200, note (2).

(3) The archdeacon was Denis Granville, prebendary of the first stall in Durham Cathedral, 1662; archdeacon of Durham, with rectory of Easington annexed, 1662; rector of Elwick, 1664; rector of Sedgfield, 1667, on obtaining which preferment he resigned the rectory of Elwick; dean of Durham, 1684, retaining the archdeaconry and the livings of Easington and Sedgfield; fled from the deanery, 1688; deprived, 1691; died at Corbeil, 1703, and buried at Paris. (Introduction to Granville's Remains, Surtees, vol. xxxvii.) It seems that occasionally he held his visitations at his own place of residence. Similarly in 1668 and 1669 they go to Easington, and 1675 to Sedgfield, of which parish also he had then become rector, as has been shown above.

(4) This payment, which recurs yearly, was for charge of the church clock.

(5) There were formerly both a fore and a back churchyard, which are frequently mentioned in this book. The former was added to the marketplace about the year 1841. It extended as far as the flat pavement now on the south side of the church. There was a narrow passage between its boundary wall and the piazza shown in old views. The 'back churchyard' was a smaller portion of ground on the north of the church, now partly occupied by the Sunday school, and including the piece of grass supported by a burr wall, and elevated above the lane which runs down towards the river on the north. It included also a detached portion on the west of the church—now a yard to the new market and town hall—which was separated from the west door of the church by a narrow passage, over which a draw-bridge was let down for carrying corpses out.

John Nickleson for 1 slott and 2 staples for the Quiar doore, 1 s. For sharpeing the church hack, 3 d. P^d for shoule iron and Cotteralls, 1 s. 20 February, P^d M^r Ra. Disbursements 17th Februarij, '65. Paid for renewing the Church plate as by note,² 1 l. 17 s. 0 d. P^d for 3 els sercnet for M^r Thirkeld,³ 1 l. 11 s. 6 d. P^d for the carridge of it from Lon-

(1) See p. 200, note (1).

(2) The chalice with cover, 'renewed' and 'florished' this year, remains, bearing the London hall mark, date 1665-66. Its height, without the cover, is 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches. On it, in flourished letters within a wreath, is the inscription, Calix Benedictonis Sci Nicolai Dunelm. 1665; and on the foot of the cover, which, as usual, served the purpose of a paten, the date 1665, also within a wreath. Another silver cup, 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches in height, with a cover, or paten, which fits it, and two silver flagons, 11 inches in height, with covers attached to the handles, were given to the church in 1686. Both have the London hall mark, date 1685-86. On the cup a shield is engraved, bearing: Party per fesse, 6 martlets, for Fenwick, impaling a chevron between 3 demi-lions; on a chief 3 chaplets, for Hall, beneath which is the inscription: The Gift of Mary Fenwick Widd of M^r W^m Fenwick of Newton Garres Deceas'd & the only daughter & Heir of Alderman John Hall Vintner for the Communion Service of St Nicholas Durham. On the flagon a saltire, engrailed between four wolves' heads erased, for Clarke, impaling Hall, as above, and below them the inscription: Given to y^e Parish Church of St Nicholas in The Citie of Durham by M^{rs} Ann Clark Widdow. Sister to John Hall Esq^r one of y^e Aldermen of y^e said Citie. 1686. All these remain, and are specified in the inventory of utensils in the year 1702, which see. Other silver articles now in use are a paten with foot, 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter—hall mark, London, 1708-9—and a pair of alms' basins 14 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter—hall mark, Edinburgh, 1841-42—the gift of Thomas Wilkinson, Esq., of Old Elvet.

Memorandum, that upon the 30th day of May 1666 there was delivered unto Jarrerd Welberry and Abraham Paxton, churchwardens of S^t Nicholas parish in Durham, the particulers following. Inprimis, 2 books for the Morning Prayer of a large volume; 1 greet Bible; 2 greet books chened to the pillow; a book of the King woorks; ¹—2 large puter flaggons for the Comunion; 2 plates; 1 silver challis with a cover; ² 2 basons, and 2 boxes for the counterparts of several leses; 3 sirpluths; 1 black plush cloath for the pulput, and a quistion of the same; 1 black cloath for the Comunion Table; another for the Lettenny desk; 1 lynyng table cloath with a fring; 1 squair napkin belonging to it; 1 small booke for the Fast day; ³

(1) The '2 greet books' were, as appears from the inventory for 1667-68, the Paraphrases of Erasmus and Jewel's Controversy with Harding, as to the latter of which see p. 68, note (1). 'The King Woorks,' described in the year 1671-72 as 'the booke of the King and Parliament's Proceedings,' was doubtless 'ΒΑΣΙΛΙΚΑ, The Workes of King Charles the Martyr; with a Collection of Declarations, Treaties, and other Papers, concerning the Differences betwixt his sacred Majesty and his two Houses of Parliament. London, 1662, folio, 2 vols., with portrait by Hertochs.'—Lowndes.

1 pillow to put the sirpluths in; the old Count-booke.—Paid over at the same time in moneys, which rest in our hands, 7 s. 10 d.

[The accounts for the year 1665–6, with which the earliest vestry-book extant in the parish of St Nicholas begins, have been given, as found in the book, in full, with the exception of the lists of the names of ratepayers and of recipients of alms, which have been omitted. In the years that follow, entries which recur regularly year after year, and such as appear to be of no peculiar interest, are also omitted. Among such are, not only the lists of names aforesaid, which are carefully recorded every year, but also receipts of rents for houses, of the interest of legacies for the poor, of the Christmas gift for the poor of 4 l. from the Dean or Dean and Chapter (continued annually till 1677), and of payments received for lairstalls (3 s. 4 d. for an adult, and 1 s. 8 d. for a child), which are continued to the end of the book; and also the inventories of books and church utensils (except when any variation or addition requires to be noticed), delivered in successive years by the Churchwardens to their successors. Among the disbursements, also, such as are recurrent or ordinary are omitted. But all entries that relate to pews and seats therein, to visitations and ecclesiastical discipline, or to collections under briefs, will still be given in full, together with any others that seem to be of peculiar interest.]

(1) The custom of allowing individuals to build pews for themselves and their families, paying for the space, occurs in the St. Oswald's book as early as 1608. See p. 150, note (1). Cf. Introduction to Pittington Book, p. 3 (Pews), and what is said in the general Preface on the subject. Both at St. Nicholas and St. Oswald it seems to have been only for themselves and their wives that men at first usually built pews, sons and daughters being apparently left to shift for themselves. The faculty pews, however, which soon became frequent, were for whole families. Similarly at Pittington, when appropriated seats were first assigned to women, it was at first, with one or two exceptions, only for wives. See Pittington Book, p. 80, note (1).

(2) See p. 79, note (1). The clerk's surplice is again referred to in A.D. 1679 and 1698, showing that the custom continued after the Restoration, at any rate in the diocese of Durham, to the close of the seventeenth century at least.

(3) Rushes are often mentioned in subsequent years, as strewn, at Whitsuntide and other times, on the floor of the church, including that of the pews. It does not appear whether the church was so far flagged. That of St. Oswald was flagged A.D. 1607–8, that of Houghton A.D. 1604, that of Pittington apparently A.D. 1634. See p. 97, and p. 148, note (1).

(1) This and similar entries show that in the original arrangement of the pews those for women were apart from those for men. It seems (so far, at any rate, as these books show) to have been in the case of pews which parishioners had been allowed to build for themselves that men began first to sit with their wives beside them: but at first their wives only, not their families. As time went on, the churchwardens assigned existing pews to men and their wives together; but it seems to have been under faculties that the system of appropriated pews for families began.

of the church, and was pulled down by Messrs. Henderson & Co., perhaps soon after 1840, to enable them to use the site for the extension of their carpet-factory works. He describes it as 'a fine building, probably of the middle of the last century.' If so, the house he remembers must have superseded an older one.

(1) The mayor's and aldermen's wives appear to have been now for the first time distinguished by having a pew to themselves. It seems to have been grander than ordinary ones, being lined with 'greene base.' See below.

For Birkes for the church at Whitsuntide, 1 s. 8 d.¹ To Lancelot Dunn for the pewes of the church

(1) Birkes, i.e. branches of birch, are mentioned in subsequent years as being set up in the church at Whitsuntide. E.g., A.D. 1672: 'For birkes, and putting them up;' and in 1673: 'For seting the birches and strowing the reeses, and dressing the church.' The rushes used for covering the floor appear also to have been renewed at Whitsuntide. The old ones which were removed may have formed a constituent of the 'maunre,' which we find from time to time carried away from the 'back churchyard.' But to return to 'birches.' They are still similarly used on the Continent. A correspondent speaks of their being carried in procession and set up in the churchyards or churches on Corpus Christi Day in Switzerland, the Tyrol, and the Black Forest. For evidence of their former use in England at Whitsuntide a contributor to Notes and Queries refers to Herrick ('Ceremonies for Candlemasse Eve'):

'When yew is out, then birch comes in,
And many flowers beside,
Both of a fresh and fragrant kinne,
To honour Whitsuntide.'

(O. C. D. in Notes and Queries, 3rd Ser., v. 73)

Further, in Ellis's edition of Brand's Popular Antiquities we find, 'Johnson, in his edition of Gerarde's Herbal, speaking of the Birch Tree, p. 1478, says: "It serveth well to the decking up of houses and banquetting-rooms, for places of pleasure, and for beautifying of streets in the Crosse or Gang Week, and such like'" (vol. i. p. 172). Rogation Week (i.e. the next but one before Whitsunday) was called Gang Week (Sax. Gang-dagar) from the perambulations of parishes which took place on the Rogation days before Holy Thursday, and Cross Week (as in Dutch, Crays-week) from the Cross carried in procession on those occasions. (See note to Brand, in loc. cit.) We may suppose that the birches which had been carried in the perambulations were afterwards set up in the church; and thus the custom of so decorating churches at Whitsuntide (retained in the parish of St. Nicholas, at least throughout the seventeenth century) may have originated.

(1) It seems that the aldermen's pew was now distinguished above others by having 'matts,' and not merely rushes, on its floor.

(2) Maundy Thursday is again called Sky Thursday in the disbursements for 1671-72, and in those for 1676-77 Skies Thursday. This unusual name, from its form as well as for other reasons, we may conclude to be of Danish origin, carrying us back to the time when the Danes in England received the faith. In old Norse, or Icelandic, the name for it is Sktri-poradagr, and also Sktr-dagr, from skira, meaning to purify, to wash, to baptise. John the Baptist is called Sktri-Jon. The same word exists in Gothic as akeir, in Anglo-Saxon as seir, in English as sheer, in the sense of bright, pure, simple. Thursday before Easter may be supposed to have received this name from the washing of feet customary on the day, after the example of our Lord; or perhaps also from the absolution and readmission into the church of penitents on the day, whence in Austria it is called Antlatz-tag. It was eminently a day of cleansing. The Danish name is still Skier-torsdag. A like name seems thus to have lingered in these northern parts past the middle of the seventeenth century; and it would be easy and natural for a word pronounced as skyre to become sky when its meaning was lost. The scribe who in 1677 wrote Skies may have had a vague notion that the heavens were denoted by it.

Another name of the day, well known to have been once in use elsewhere in England, viz. Shere Thursday, is usually explained as having had reference to the practice of cutting, or shearing, the hair against Easter on Maundy Thursday. So in Brand's Popular Antiquities, on the authority of an ancient homilist:—'Shere Thursday is the Thursday before Easter, and is so called "for that in old Fathers days the people would that day shere theyr hedes and clypp theyr berdes and pool theyr heedes, and so make them honest against Easterday."—From an old homily quoted in the Weekly Packet of Advice from Rome, i. p. 168. See also the Festival, 1511, fol. 31.' In the note, however, on the above passage in Ellis's 'Brand,' a writer in the Gentleman's Magazine for July 1779 (vol. xlix. p. 349) is quoted as suggesting a different derivation, thus:—'Maundy Thursday, called by Collier Shier Thursday, Cotgrave calls by a word of the same sound and import, Sheere Thursday. Perhaps, for I can only go upon conjecture, as sheer means purus, mundus, it may allude to the washing of the disciples' feet (John xiii. 5, seq.), and be tantamount to "clean." See ver. 10; and Lye's Saxon Dictionary, v. rcip. Please to observe, too, that on that day they also washed the altars, so that the term in question may allude to that business. See Collier's Eccles. Hist. vol. ii. p. 197.' There can be little doubt that this writer was on the right scent, the term sky, retained in these northern parts, being confirmatory of his view. For sky (originally, as we have seen reason to suppose, pronounced skyre) could not have had anything to do with shearing, while its probable relationship to shere is obvious. The Norse sk would naturally be retained in the north, where the Norse element of race was predominant; while in the south the softer form sch, further softened eventually to sh, would be likely to prevail. The vowels i and e are known to be easily transmutable, and with regard to the initial consonants, it may be observed that the intermediate form, schere, occurs in the Revelation to the Monk of Evesham (supposed to have been written circa 1196), where we find: 'Sothly on thes eyn of schere-thurdaye in the whiche nyght the office and service of owr lord ihesu cryste ys tradicion and passion was solely songe wyth grete deuocion' (English Reprints, vol. viii., edited by Edward Arber; London, 1869). Thus the current interpretation of Shere Thursday, in common with many other commonly accepted derivations of words, appears to be wrong, notwithstanding the authority of the mediæval homilist, or any other. The origin of the mistake is easily understood; for when the original meaning of the word had passed out of sight, it would be natural to associate it with the shearing practised on the day.

of the Consistory Court with regard to seats in church. It became frequent afterwards. The case appears to have been as follows. A pew, the second in the north aisle (described afterwards as 'in length one yard and a half and 14 inches, and in breadth one yard or thereabouts'), had been occupied by a Mr. Smith and his wife Jane. It may have been assigned originally to Smith for himself and his wife by the churchwardens. On Smith's death, the churchwardens assigned the pew, in 1673, to Edward Fairless, receiving from him 1s. for entry. Upon this, Widow Smith asserted her own claim to the pew in the Spiritual Court, and in October 1674 obtained an order from the Chancellor to the minister and churchwardens, commanding them to reinstate her. This they did, but not without her paying them 1s. as a newly-admitted tenant. She does not, however, appear to have wanted the pew for her own occupation; for in March 1675 it was reassigned by the churchwardens to George Page for himself and his wife for the customary payment, the consent of the widow Jane Smith having been previously obtained. It may be presumed, though it is not mentioned, that Page had paid the widow something for giving up her pew to him. She was evidently still regarded as its legal possessor; for it was not till her death that the pew in question, stated to have been 'in layet possession of Jane Smith, widow,' was assigned by a faculty (dated May 5, 1677) 'to Tobyee Blakston, his wife and childer, as long as they live in the sayd parrish and payes his fees accordingly.' In the meantime Edward Fairless, to whom the churchwardens had assigned the pew after Smith's death, aggrieved at being put out of it, applied for redress to the Spiritual Court in concert with one John Hixon, and obtained an order from the Chancellor (dated January 29, 1674) for their being seated in another pew in the same aisle, which was to be for the use of themselves and their wives. They paid the customary 1s. to the churchwardens, and to the Court for fees 13s. 4d.

*Receipts for pews.*¹—Of M^r Richard Padman for himselfe and his wife, Robert Farror and wife, for the seat or pew on the West end of the church next adjoining upon the West of M^r Francis Crosby's pew, xij d. a peece, 4 s. Item of Edward King for a pew or seat for himselfe and his wife; as alsoe George Middleton, butcher, for his seat in the East end or part of the second pew being as it is now devided into two as heretofore was, being in the middle isle or alley att the West end of the church, xij d. per peece, 3 s. Item of George Peart for him and his wife for their seat in the East end of the third pew att the West end in the middle isle, 2 s. Anthony Browne,

(1) It is observable how usual the assignment of pews to men and their wives has now become, though the older custom of seating persons of the two sexes individually, and apart from each other, still continues. It may be again remarked that the granting of pews in the body of the church to whole families, and so as to be transmissible to heirs as property as long as they lived in the parish and went to church, seems to have originated in the mischievous action of the Bishop's Court assuming the power of making such grants in perpetuity. But see below, A.D. 1686, when the minister and churchwardens, on their own authority, assign and confirm to a widow, Elizabeth Adamson, her executors and assigns, her deceased husband's pew, to be held by her and her assigns in respect of a messuage &c. in Claypeth, of which she had become the possessor. They may have had no power to do this, but the Court had given them the cue.

(1) About this time things seem to have been in a slack state. There have been no entries of disbursements since 1686, and there are none of any kind between 1690 and 1693, a few pages being left blank in the interval. In this year, too (1690–91), the disbursements are very few, being mainly on the bells, the continual attention required to which, in this as in other books, is remarkable. Only four bottles of wine are got for Communion, and apparently on one occasion only. The time embraces the revolution of 1688, and the early years of William and Mary; Crewe being bishop, and James Sanderson incumbent. Dennis Granville, Dean and Archdeacon of Durham, had fled from the deanery in 1688, and was deprived in 1691. See above, p. 218, note (3).

THE BURIALL ORDER.

Whereas it is and for many yeares last past hath been found by common experience to be very inconvenient for persons of business to attend the funerals of relations and acquaintances in the city and suburbs of Durham by reason that noe certaine rule or method for directing such funerals hath hitherto been publicly established and ordered for the said city and suburbs, whereby people have stayed at such funerals 2 or 3 houres or more, which tends to the discouragement of attending and accompanying funerals there; people thereby neglecting their own necessary occasion and business:—For the remedieing whereof for the future It is ordered by Wheatley Dobson, Esq^r, Major, and the Aldermen and Common Counsel of the said city in Common Counsell assembled as aforesaid,—That from and after the first day of January 1694 noe longer time shall be allowed for the gathering together at the funerall house and serveing the people there then 2 houres; And that notice of the time when they shal begin to gather to such funeral shal be given by some proper and fitt person or officer in the said city or suburbs to be appointed and elected by each parish in the said city or suburbs by the consent of the four and twenty for each of the said parishes, who shal continue in such office for such time as the said four and twenty shal direct in each of the said parishes; And for the better and more publique notice of the said time soe appointed for such funerals the bell or bells of the parish where the Corps are to be interred shal ring exactly at the houre at which notice is given for such funerals; And the bell or bells shal begin to ring a second time at one houre's space afterwards, and a third time one quarter of an houre before the expiracion of the 2nd houre appointed for attending such funerals; And the saxton of each parish church shal immediately upon the beginning to ring the third time repaire to the house where the corps are, and there give notice to some of the family that the said 3rd time of ringing is begunn, and there admonish them to carry away the said corps. And if the said saxton be negligent therein, he shal hereby incurr the forfeiture of his place, and a new saxton to be chosen in his roome or steed; And the owner of such house or principal manager of such funerall shal forfeit for his or their defalt to the Bpp. of Durham for the time being 39 s. 11 d., and the like summe to the poore of parish where such funerall is. And it is hereby further ordered That the persons present at such funerall at the end of the said 2 houres shal depart from such house as the said corps are at upon paine of one shilling a piece to the Bpp. and one shilling to the poore of the parish where such funerall is, and to be recovered in the Town Court in the said city by action of debt together with costs of such suite by amerciment there: And it is hereby further ordered that for the better discovery of such persons as are negligent in the observeance hereof the saxton or proper officer of each parish shal attend at the house where such funeral is, And give notice within 2 daies afterward of the person or persons names who are breakers or non observers hereof to the end they may be proceeded against for the recovery of the forfeitures aforesaid: And it is further ordered that if any inhabitant in the said city or suburbs shal not observe this order they shal be raised 2 d. per month to the reliefe of the poore; And if any freeman shal be an ofender herein, besides the forfeitures aforesaid he shal be uncapeable of receiveing any part of the publique charities of the said city and suburbs either for himself or children. Out of which forfeitures the Major for the time being shal make recompence to such officer or person as give informacion of offenders against this order as in his discretion he shal think fit, and the surplusage of such forfeiture to be distributed in the parish where such funerall is at the said Major's discretion among the poore inhabitants there: And for the better inforceing the observacion of the premises, It is hereby further ordered that every Society or Company within the said city shal enter into their books of orders this order, and under it an order to this purpose, that they whose names are thereunto subscribed with the order above written upon paine of the forfeitures aforesaid to be recovered and levied as aforesaid. It is likewise ordered that several copies hereof shal be sent to the several parish clerks within the city and suburbs to take care of the due observacion hereof.

December 31, 1696. At the Tolebooth the said day the Major and Aldermen being present at a meeteing have elected and chosen Thomas Jackson as the proper and fit officer as relateing to this order for burials. Wheat. Dobson, Major, &c.

VESTRY BOOK OF THE PARISH OF HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING.

VOL. I. 1592-1669.

THIS earliest account-book is a folio volume containing 208 leaves, 'numbred 25 Mar. 1648' (208 verso),¹ size 10½ by 7½ inches. It was bound and paper added in 1631 (92) but being all in pieces and much decayed has recently been thoroughly repaired and rebound in calf. Blank pages have been inserted in place of those which are lost. The accounts of receipts and expenses extend from 1595 to 1669, but there are various memoranda in different parts of the book, which will here be given in chronological order. The earliest relate to the assignment of seats to the parishioners, as on ff. 98-101, which contain lists of the occupants of the several stalls as altered again and again by erasing some names and substituting others. At the foot of fo. 101 v. (cropped in 1631) we find the following note:—

'John Humble Churchwarden Anno Domini 1591, hathe and did — names and surnames of the owners of men and women stales — — Maie, Anno Domini 1592.'

On fo. 101 are the words 'John Humble, Churchwarden, 1591,' and then follow the women's stalls on the north side with names as assigned by him. Fo. 96 v. is blank, and 97 wanting; 98 begins with a different portion of the same assignment. The main heads are here given, with specimens of particular parts. The names substituted are printed in italics. Similar lists of occupants of seats in St. Lawrence's, Reading, in 1607, are printed in Kerry's History of that church (1883) pp 79-82.

(1) The accounts for this year and the receipts for 1596 are transcribed in full: afterwards extracts only. The following points may be noticed in this and subsequent years: 1. There were usually (till after the Restoration) only three Communion seasons (though sometimes four), except when there were special celebrations (probably ordered by the Spiritual Court) for persons who had neglected to communicate, and were required to do so. There were usually several celebrations at the Easter season. 2. As at Pittington, the wine appears to have been purchased for each occasion, the churchwardens going for it to Durham, Newcastle, or Sunderland, and bringing it in a 'runlet,' or cask. 3. Here the cost was met from the first by regular cessments for the purpose; nor was there the same difficulty about it that appears in the parish of Pittington. See, however, memorandum on the subject A.D. 1604. 4. The bells seem to have been always rung during the whole of the Coronation Day, the churchwardens as well as the ringers having their dinners and suppers provided. Other occasions will be noticed. 5. The system with regard to 'stalls' and 'lairstalls,' and the payments for both, was the same as at Pittington, except that wives as well as men had, at Houghton, seats assigned them from the first, and that entries or renewals of stalls are continual annually in this parish, and that the system of appropriation is generally more developed.

(1) So far, it seems, the church had not been flagged at all, the bare earth having probably been covered only with straw or rushes. Cf. supra A.D. 1508, 'For filling up the brod alley with earth.' Also Pittington Book A.D. 1605, 'For two thrave of straw for the stalls.' The church of St. Oswald also appears to have been flagged about this time. The work at Houghton will be found fully carried out in the year succeeding this. This year also, as appears from the entries, the church was plastered and two lofts, or galleries, erected. Further, there were provided a new 'Communion table,' pulpit, and 'minister's stall.' These might be in consequence of the Canons of 1604, of which 82 requires 'a decent Communion table' in every church, and 'a convenient seat for the minister to read service in'; and 83 orders 'a comely and decent pulpit, to be set in a convenient place within the same, by the discretion of the Ordinary of the place, if any question do arise, and to be there seemly kept for the preaching of God's Word.' The Ordinary appears to have intervened here, with respect at least to the 'seemly keeping' of the pulpit, for we find in the following year, 'To Mr. Hutton for the fees of the Court concerning the pulpett cloth.'

August, 1604.—It is agreed by the gentlemen and 24 of this parish that whosoever he be of the 24 that is absent (lawfull warning being given) they shall pay after the ould custome xij d. to the poore man's box unless a lawfull excuse be to the contrary, and that to be allowed of by the residew of the 24.

(1) The unusual number of communions this year on successive Sundays in May, June, and November, would be due to the strict enforcement at this time of the laws against recusancy, all parishioners being required to communicate, and to have the opportunity of doing so. The year 1605 was that of the Gunpowder Plot. We observe further signs of strict enforcement of the penal law in the frequent appearances this year of the churchwardens before the Courts, spiritual and temporal. In addition to the usual visitations of the Archdeacon in April and October, they are further twice before him, once at Chester-le-Street and once at Durham, 'concerning the recusants,' once at the Quarter Sessions, and twice before the Court of High Commission. Cf. the Pittington Book for the same year, p. 55.

(2) This combination of the terms synod and scene (or, as the latter word is more usually written, seane, and sometimes in the Pittington Book, seeing) for visitation is peculiar. The scribe of the year may have affected learned correctness. He departs also from usage in writing Duresme instead of Durham.

(1) That is, the part of the fence kept in repair by the churchwardens from the funds at their disposal. It appears from subsequent entries (1653, 1658, &c.) that the several townships in the parish were by custom responsible for different parts of the wall, but that the fence on the north side (which appears to have been then only a 'dike' or hedge) was kept up by the parish in common.

(1) The tables after the Reformation which took the place of the old altars were long and narrow, being intended to be placed lengthways, east and west, in the chancel or body of the church at communion times. Specimens of such tables (called in derision, 'oyster boards') are still to be seen, though not now in use, in Jersey. Such a table doubtless existed at Houghton at the date before us, being placed as aforesaid. Why it was shortened does not appear. It is not likely to have been with the view of placing it 'altarwise,' the movement in this direction, under the influence of Laud, having begun later than 1629, unless, indeed, the rector, Dr. Lyndsell, had been beforehand in the movement. That it stood in the chancel at Houghton during communion as well as at other times we may conclude from finding it so placed for communion even during the Commonwealth. See below, A.D. 1658: 'Eleaven long firdale formes for the communicants to sitt on in the Quire.'

123. 1633.—Whereas an order was made the 26th of Aprill anno Regni Jacobi secundo, by M^r Doctor Hutton, Parson of Houghton, the gentlemen and the 24 of the said parish, for the prevention of suites, and the preservation of love, betwixt the said Parson and his parishioners, and amongst the parishioners themselves, in these words: It is agreed the day and yeare abovewritten, &c. . . . (See above, p. 282). The which pious order haveing lyen fruitlesse for divers yeares last by past, by reason whereof the parishioners of the said parish is growne to such a height of malice and contention as it hath caused the knights, the parson of Houghton for the time being, the gentlemen and 24 of the said parish, to take into there considerations what might be the causes why the aforesaid order, being made to so good and religious an end, should worke no better effect: And, upon perusall of the order aforesaid, it was conceived by the knights, the parson, &c., . . . that by reason it was not provided by the aforesaid order that a penaltie should be forfeited by all such parishioner or parishioners, &c., . . . that was not contented to refere his or there difference or differences to be ordered as aforesaid, or being referred, and ordered as aforesaid, did not hould himself contented, and satisfied with the said order, but did disobey, &c., . . . as also for that it was not provided by the said order in express tearmes whether of the parties at variance should make there said differances knowne unto the Parson, &c., . . . as also for that it was not expressly provided by the said order that all controversies present, and which shall hereafter arise, &c., . . . shalbe referred to the arbitrement, judgment, and ending of, &c., &c., . . . by reason whereof there would be noe refferance made by vertue of the aforesaid order without the joynt election of the Parson of Houghton for the time being, and the partie or parties at variance, of 4 of the knights gentlemen and 24 aforesaid to heare and determine the same, whose absence (as now at this time) or voydance of the parsonage (as lately hath hapned) might breed a greate inconvenience in the delay of the premisses, untill the said parsonage should be supplied with a new Incumbent, and his occasions permit him to come to such an election;—for reformation of all which defects, It is ordered by the knights, the parson,

&c., &c. . . . [The new order is to the following effect:— That, in the absence of the Parson, a majority of the knights, gentlemen, and 24 may choose an umpire to act in his stead:—That any parishioner commencing a suit against another without having referred his complaint to the arbitrators appointed as aforesaid shall forfeit (the sum left blank), to be recovered by the overseers at the cost of the parish:—That, in case of any controversy arising, the parties feeling themselves aggrieved shall in the first place give notice to the Parson, or his Curate, who shall, during Morning Service on Sunday, call a meeting of the knights, gentlemen, and 24, to meet in the vestry after service:—That, if the case cannot there and then be concluded, a certain day shall be fixed for its final determination by the arbitrators, the parties at variance being allowed the assistance of Counsel:—That this order shall be read distinctly by the Parson or Curate on a Sunday in the church immediately after Divine Service before the congregation have left; and that all parishioners shall be thereafter considered to assent to it, so as to be liable to its penalties, except such as may, before the following Sunday, repair to the Churchwardens, and enter their names as dissentients in the Church Book nigh unto the place where the said order is registered.]

(1) The Scotch army, under Lesley, having crossed the Tweed, August 20, 1640, and defeated the royal forces under Lord Conway at Newburn, occupied Newcastle. There Sir William Belasyse, being High Sheriff of Durham, and Sir William Lambton, waited on General Lesley to give security for providing the Scotch army with provisions on September 3. The accounts between this year and 1650 are very meagre. With respect to them it may be observed that henceforth visitations with all ecclesiastical jurisdiction cease, for the cause of which see p. 102, note (1). Further, that till 1645 things in the parish seem to have gone on in other respects much as usual, but in that year the battle of Marston Moor having been fought in July 1644 and till 1650, the disbursements amount to no more than 1*l.* or 2*l.* in each year, and there is no mention of any expenditure for bread and wine, although we find 'for a howre glasse, 9*d.*' In 1650, the Commonwealth having been established in 1649, the entries in the book become interesting as illustrative of the conduct of parochial affairs under that regime.

147. It is concluded and agreed upon among the gentlemen and 24 the 9th of June, 1650, that a cesment of 5 s. the pound is to be levied through the parish, &c.

It is also agreed by the gentlemen and 24 aforesaid that the Cunstable presently bring in, with the severall townes where they live, the names of all the cottagers and other able persons . . . to be assessed as it shalbe thought fit, towards the necessarie repaires of the Church.

It is also agreed, that at the returne of Mr Eastthrope a collection be gathered through the parish for bread and wine after the usual manner that it hath beene gathered, that the parishioners may have a Communion.¹

(1) There is no subsequent notice of this order having been carried out, or of any communions till the Restoration. Mr. Eastthrope may be concluded to have been a presbyterian divine expected to come to the parish in place of the ejected rector, John Barwick. Subsequently, A.D. 1659, one Nicholas Battersby was in possession of the living, as appears from the following entry in the register: 'Nicolas Battersby, Rector of this parish, and M^ris Hester Lawson of Newcastle, married 2 June, 1659.' He is mentioned also as 'parson of this parish' in certain orders (No. 12) made by the vestry March 30, 1658, which are given below. After the Restoration

It is also agreed . . . that the clark of this parish shall have his accustomed wages and his areeres paid him for the time that he hath served.

It is also agreed that Nichollas Dobson, now sexton, shall doe all such offices as the former sextons did, or otherwise another to be chosen in his place, and that all such as have broken ground in the church shall pay 4 d. accustomed, to be collected by the said Dobson.

Delaval appears to have been active and efficient in the discharge of his functions, as will be seen below. Till the end of November 1657 Delaval himself signs all the entries in the register, after which date they are not signed at all. Immediately on the Restoration Thomas Delaval disappears from view. The 'John Hall, Maior,' who signs the accounts as well as Delaval, may have been the Mayor of Durham or of Sunderland. Others, designated 'Maior,' sign with Delaval in a few subsequent years. - 163 v. A.D. 1657.—Att Hetton in the Hole, the 2nd day of March,

Be it remembred that the said day and yeare, Att a meeting of the gentlemen and fower and twenty with the Churchwardens and Overseers of the parish of Houghton in the Springe, It was concluded and is ordered as followeth.

1. That the last sesse of v s. a pound, laid on 19 July last, be spedily collected, out of which the arrearas for the goale and Marshalsey unpaid by this parish for the yeares 1656 and 1657 is to be paid, being vj l. x s., and the remainder of that sesse to be paid towards the repaires of the church, the bells, and the churchyard walls: and what the charge in doing this work may require, the same is to be viewed by the church officers and workmen, and a particular thereof given in att the next meeting appointed this said day month: and then a sess to be laid on the parish for the said repayres.

2. That all such of this parish as have not paid the accos-tomed fee or duty for lairstalls, That the churchwardens doe forthwith collect the same, and pay to Thomas Hope, mason, for 19 dayes 19 s., and to William Shaw, laborer, for 17 dayes viij s. vj d., for repaying the pavement and dressing the church: and the remainder of that money to be reserved for reparacion of the pewes and seates.

3. That alwayes hereafter none be suffered to break the ground within the church to bury there dead there but such as have bin accustomed, and with the licence of the churchwardens. When any dy before the grave be made, the sexton is to give them notice thereof, to the end noe corps be suffered to be interred till the due fees for breaking the ground within the church be paid; that is iij s. iiij d. for a man or woman,

(1) Major Thomas Lilburne, of Offerton, eldest son of the George referred to in the last note. His monument (a plain blue slab) in Houghton Church has the inscription, 'Here lyeth the body of Major Thomas Lilburne, who was one of the instrumental persons in his Majesty's happy Restoration.
 He departed this life 25th of March, Anno Domini 1665.'

and xx d. for a child; with the which money the harme done either to the pavement or seates by making the grave is within 14 dayes after to be repayred, and the rubbish remayning to be cleane carryed forth of the church.

4. That the churchwardens for the time being doe hereafter take speciall care to open and lock the church doores upon all occasions, and leave the keyes in the custody and keeping of the parish clerk or one of themselves; and that they keep and have in readiness for use at all times the church plate, books, and other goods of the parish.

5. That the churchwardens from time to time according to law doe take care to order the seates in the church, and appoint every parishioner a convenient seate there, that does now or hereafter shall want one.

6. That although the present sexton Nicholas Dobson has bin very remiss and negligent in his office, yett upon Philip Brough and Michaell Robinson's engagement for him that (164) hereafter he will looke to his charge more diligently in all things as he ought, The said Dobson is againe admitted to be sexton for one yeare; and particularly he is not to make any graves within the church without leave of one or more of the churchwardens; to take the pavement stones carefully up without breaking, to dig and make every grave within the church a yard and a halfe deepe at least, and in the church-yard 5 quarters; to sweep the church and seates every fortnight, and cast out the dirt and rubbish; to observe the accustomed howers for ringing the bells, on the Lord's dayes and at other meetings, forenoone and afternoone; and after the bells and roaps are new repayred, the sexton to find the roapes after; and the money given at burials for ringing, each ringer to have his part, to dispose as he pleaseth, soe it be not spent by wastfull drinking. To keepe the spades and shovels for the making graves for that use and no other; and carefully and duly to do all things else belonging to his place, otherwise the said Dobson is to be displaced, and a new Sexton chosen in his roome.

7. That John Philpott be continued clerk of this parish, and shall have and receive all the accustomed fees and wages that heretofore has bin paid, or doth belong to that office, he doing and performing all services whatsoever belonging to the said place, and if he shall refuse, then another to be nominated and chosen clerk at the next meeting.

8. That according to an Ordinance of Parliament 3 Jan. 1644, The Minister and churchwardens doe carefully keep the new Register book, and that the Minister doe from time to time therein write and sett downe the names of all children baptised, and of their parents, and of the time of their birth and baptising; and the names of all persons married there, and the time of their marriage: and also the names of all persons buried in the parish, and the time of their death and buriall.— And in confirmation of the severall orders foremencioned and made the aforesaid day and yeare, soe many of the gentlemen, fower and twenty, and church officers, as were present and consenting have hereunder sett their hands.

The hands of the gentlemen and fower and twenty.

A.D. 1658.

Att Houghton in le Spring the 30th day of March 1658.

Bee it remembered that the said day and yeare, at a meeting of the gentlemen and fower and twenty, with the Churchwardens and Overseers of the parish of Houghton in the Spring aforesaid, It was concluded &c. . . . and is ordered as followeth.

1. That the said Parish Church and every part of it, with the tower and bells and the vestry, be forthwith putt all into good and sufficient repaire, For the doing whereof that a sesse of ten shillings a pound (according to the new booke of rates) be laid on throughout the said parish, to be collected by the constables (as ever accustomed) and paid by them to the churchwardens &c. . . . The one moyety of the said sess to be paid at Whitsuntide next, and the other moyety at Lammas following.

2. The said parishioners have agreed with Michaell Greene of Durham, Plumber, that in consideracion of the sume of eight pounds to be paid him by the churchwardens out of the said tax hee is well and sufficiently before Michalmas next to repaire and new mend and cast all the leads that are in decay &c. . . . and to sowder where any holes are, soe as it may turne and keep out wind and raine or snow; The said Mich. Greene for doing the said work is at his own proper charges to find all such new lead, sowder, dales, nailes, and other materials as shalbe needfull . . . only the parish is to provide a frame and wood for casting the new sheets of lead, and a cart to fetch the dales home in. The said money is to be paid as the work goes on, only fowerty shillings to ly in the Ch. wardens' hands till all the said work be quite finished and veiwed to be well done. And the said Michaell Greene is (before any money be paid him) to enter Bond to the Ch. Wardens in the penall sume of sixteene pounds for true and due performance of the said work, as is agreed and ought to be done.

3. Similar agreement with Thomas Robinson of Hetton, Carpenter, for wood-work about the bells and belfry, to be finished at Midsummer, and 6 l. 5 s. to be then paid him, he having 'entered bond' for 12 l. 10 s.

4. Agreement with William Ironside of Houghton, Yeoman, 'who hath named Thomas Cooper of the same, Blacksmith,' to do all the iron-work about the bells and frames for 40 s.

5. Also it is ordered, That all those of this parish whose seates or pewes are now ruinous and broken, That the owners thereof doe at their own severall charges each one gett his pew repayed as formerly it hath beene at or before Midsummer next, otherwise to loose his right therein, and the gentlemen and 24 with the Ch. Wardens to dispose of the said pewes to others of the parish that want, and will repaire the same; and if any soe displaced shall notwithstanding intrude againe into their former seate, they shall forfeit halfe a crowne to the poore, and be sued at the law for their contempt at the charge of this parish.

6. Also it is ordered, That according to the old usage and custome of this parish that at the death of the owner of any pew or seate in this church, or exchange of a pew one parish-ioner with another, That those who claime the right thereof pay for each seate so renewed or exchanged to the Ch. Wardens 4 d. for the parish use. As also, if any shalbe admitted to erect a new pew in this church, he shall pay as aforesaid such a reasonable composicion for the same as heretofore hath bin accustomed. 165.

7. Also it is agreed, That each towne and hamlett in this parish doe before Midsummer next sufficiently repayre their severall parts of the church yard walls, on a paine to forfeit 10 s. a peece: and that part of the fence on the North which lyes in common, the Ch. Wardens are to see the same be amended at the parish charge as formerly.

8. Also it is ordered, That the old and accustomed wages and duties belonging to the clerks of this parish be continued and paid to John Philpott whom wee doe appoint our parish clerke, he doing and performing all those offices and services belonging that place, for which he is to be paid, to begin at Easter next, as followeth. By each Plow ix d., by each Cottager iiij d., yearly at Easter time: for a Marriage, 4 d.; for asking the banes, 2 d.; for a christning, j d.; and for a Buriall, iiij d.; which duties are paid for entering the same in the Register booke.

9. Also, it is ordered, That the sexton of this parish for the time being doe not hereafter require nor be paid any other fees for his service than as hath beene anciently accustomed, that is, By each Plow, 2 d.; by each Cottage a ob. yearly; for a Christning, ij d.; for a grave making in the Quire, vj d.; in the Church, iiij d.; in the ch. yard, 2 d. And upon good will each householder to give him buns at Christmas and eggs at Easter yearly.

10. Also, it is strictly enjoined, That the Overseers of the poore of this parish doe take present care, that if any part of the Poore's stock be in men's hands that are decayed in their estates, or whose bondsmen are not sufficient, or have not given bond, that the said Overseers doe call in the moneyes, and put it out into able men's hands with good securitie; otherwise they themselves to be responsible for the same: And likewise that such whose bonds beares date before the Act of vi li. per cent. passed September 29, 1651, be accountable and pay to the poore after viij li. in the hundreth, both for the time past and to come, till the respective parties doe pay in the severall sumes principall debt resting in their hands: Otherwise to be sued upon their bonds forthwith.

11. Also, it is agreed, That at or before Lammas next, after all the pewes and seates in this church are repayed by the owners, and such seated in new pewes that want, That then the right pewes and seates belonging to every parishioner be fairly entered and recorded in the church booke, that every one may thereafter know his proper place, and thereby all occasion of difference herein taken away.

12. And lastly, wheras Mr Battersby,¹ Parson of this parish, bath agreed with Maland of Durham, Clockmaker, to repaire and sett a going the great striking clock belonging this church at his owne charges, It is ordered that the said Maland, according to agreement with him be paid by this parish a noble a yeare for 7 years for mending and keeping the said clock in all respects perfectly going, and as oft as need requires, quarterly or oftener, to come to Houghton and dress and mend the same.

13. And that the goods parochiall of this church may not be imbeazeled it is ordered, That the churchwardens yearely doe deliver up the same by Inventory to their successors, and take care it doe agree with that Inventory inserted in the 192 page of this booke. In confirmation of the premises wee have hereunto subscribed our names the said 30th day of March in the yeare of Christ 1658. Thomas Delavall, &c. &c.

Touching the fower nobles yearely Rent due out of the 190 v. lands of Cocken to the poore of Houghton parish.¹

Bee it remembered, That by a Deed dated the 7th of July in the 30th of Elizab. betweene James Car of Newcastle, merchant, and John Heath and Richard Bellasys, governors of the Free Grammar School and Almeshouse of Kepier in the parish of Houghton in the Spring, granted by vertue of a former Deed made the 24th of July, the 12th of Eliz. by one William Car, Alderman of Newcastle, to the said James Car and others, a rentcharge of fowerty shillings and another of fower nobles per annum to be issuing forth of Cocken, and all his lands there for ever, to be paid at Martinmas and Penticost equally, yett in trust; viz. the said xl s. rent to be paid to the School-master for maintenance of the said schoole, and the other, xxvj s. viij d., to the poore of Houghton parish on All Souls day and Good Friday equally, to be distributed by the Parson of Houghton and the Churchwardens and Overseers there. The said James Car, living to be the sole survivor, assignes (as abovesaid) the said Trust over to the Governors for the time being of the said schoole to the uses aforesaid in as ample manner as it was first conveyed to him, with a clause of distress for nonpayment thereof, and Warranty, with other Covenants more at large in the said Deed expressed, and among others gives to the Master of the said schoole for the time being the said yearly rent of xl s. in augmentation of his salary and stipend &c.

Extracted and truly here recorded, according to the substance of the originall Deeds themselves in my custody, this 25th day of March in the yeare of Christ 1658. By mee Thomas Delavall, one of the governors of the said schoole.

Touching Ten Pounds lately added to the Stock of the Poore of Houghton parish by Geo. Bellasys Esq^r.

Bee it remembered that George Bellasys, one of the yonger sons of Sir William Bellasys of Moorton house, Knight, did by his last Will give by legacy to the poore of the parish of Houghton in the Spring the sume of Ten pounds in augmentation of the said Poore's Stock. The said Geo. Bellasys dyed in December 1656, and the said Ten pounds being brought to my hands soone after, I did on the 22 day of January 1656 pay and deliver the same Ten pounds to the Churchwardens and Overseers of the poore of this said parish then in office, for the use aforesaid, at Hetton-in-the-hole in the presence of sundry of the gentlemen and Fower and 20 of the said parish. As witnesse my hand this 25th day of March, in the yeare of Christ 1658. Thomas Delavall.

191. Touching the Fower Nobles Rent due out of the Towne Chamber of Newcastle to the poore.

Bee it remembered, That one M^r Franckland of the Towne of Newcastle upon Tine did give and grant the said Rent-charge, as appeares by soe much of his last Will and Testament made the 12 of Q. Eliz. in these words following:—Also I will that the Mayor, Aldermen, and Fower and Twenty of the Counsell of Newcastle as is beforesaid shall every yeare deliver or cause to be delivered to the Person of Houghton in the Spring, and to the Churchwardens of the same parish, xxvj s. viij d. lawfull English money, parcell of the ten pounds of the yearly encrease as before is said: The which fower Nobles I will and upon God's behalfe doe command that it be yearly given to the most poore and needy through the whole parish, without respect of any person, as they will answer at their utmost perills for doing the contrary: And I will that the same shalbe given at such dayes and times as the fower Nobles is appointed to be given which my welbeloved wife hath given out of Cocken as the speciall writings concerning the same, and also xl s. yearely to M^r Gilpin's schoole, will testify and beare record.

Extracted, &c. . . . Thomas Delavall.

Touching the Ten pounds due out of Kirkledam yearely to the Poore of Houghton parish.

Bee it remembered, That, according to the informacion I have had from sundry credible persons, Richard Bellasys of Morton house Esq^r did by his Deed in writing assure to these Feoffees in trust, viz. W^m Thursby, Rob^t Rutter, W^m Rickaby, and Rich. Hevyside, a Rentcharge of Ten pounds a yeare to be paid out of his Tythes of Kirkledam in the County of York for the tearme of ninety nine yeares after his death, The same to be distributed among twenty poore people borne within the parish of Houghton in the Spring quarterly, viz. to ten of them iij s. a quarter, which is vj li. a yeare, and to the other ten ij s. a quarter, which is iiij li. a yeare. The said Richard Bellasys dyed (as I find it in the old Register booke of this said parish) on the 13th day of January in the yeare of Christ 1599.

Witnesse my hand this 25 day of March 1658.—Thomas Delavall.

Touching the 24 li. a yeare rent due out of Hylton to the poore of Houghton parish.

Bee it remembered, That Baron Henry Hylton of Hylton within the parish of Monkwearmouth in the County of Durham Esq^r did by his last Will and Testament among other things &c. impose a Rentcharge of Twenty fower pound a yeare to be issuing forth of all his lands for the tearme of ninety nine yeares from and after the time of his death, the same to be paid to the Overseers of the poore of the parish of Houghton in the Spring, To be by them distributed amongst twelve of the poorest inhabitants borne within the said parish by allotting to every one of them fowerty shillings a yeare. The said Baron Henry Hylton dyed in the month of March in the yeare of Christ 1640. All which is true, as appeares by sundry writings which I have seene; as Witnesse my hand att Hetton-in-the-hole the 25th day of March in the yeare 1658. Thomas Delavall.

Touching the office of churchwardens, &c.

*198. Election of
Ch. Wardens.*

The parishioners are by Ord. of Parl^t 9 Feb., 1647, to meet yearly on the Monday or Tueisday in Easter weak, and the major part of them must chuse so many Ch. Wardens as formerly has bin, under paine of xl s. to be forfeited by the parish to the use of the poore.

These Ch. Wardens so chosen are within a month after to be allowed under the hands and seales of two of the next Justices of the Peace.

To be allowed.

These officers with the overseers of the poore, or the major part, upon publique notice given first in the church, are from time to time to make assesments by taxing every parishioner dwelling within the parish, and every occupier of lands, houses, tythes impropriate, or impropriacion of tythes, coleries, or other hereditaments, in such competent sums of money as they think fitt.

For assessments.

These rates are to be made for raysing money before there be need for repaying the church before it be in decay, for buying of books for the church, providing of bread and wine for the Sacrament, repaying the church yard walls, upholding the bells and steeple, for the Upper Bench, Marshalsy and the like, and for the doing of all other things required by the said ordinance at the charge of the parish, or that doth belong to the office place or duty of a churchwarden.

Rates to what use.

After the rates are made, it must be put in writing, signed by such as consented to them, and after must be confirmed by the two next Justices.

Rates to be confirmed.

If any man refuse to pay his rates, the present or subsequent Churchwardens may by warrant under the hands and seales of the two next Justices distreyne for it, and 2 s. 6 d. for the charge of levying the same, and if no distress can be found, then the said Justices is to commit the parties so refusing to the goale, there to ly without baile till they pay their sesse.

Ch. Wardens to account.

The Ch. Wardens must within 4 dayes after their yeares ended, and new chosen, give account to their successors and the two next Justices of all moneys by them received or assessed and not received, and of all other things belongs their office, and must pay the money in their hands to the new Ch. wardens, or else they forfeit xx s. to the use of the poore, to be levied by warrant under 2 Justices' hands.

For their negligence.

If the Ch. wardens be negligent or faulty in the execucion of their office, they forfeit xl s. as aforesaid for every such default or negligence. And if they refuse to accompt as is said, two Justices may commit them to the common goale, there to ly without bayle till they make a true accompt and pay the money in their hands.

A Justice of Peace to see the church repayed.

If the Ch. wardens neglect to reaire the church, one Justice next inhabiting may upon informacion examine the decayes, and upon his own veiw or a certificate of the Minister and some of the parish, by a warrant under his hand and seale to the ch. wardens, order and direct what reparacions shalbe made in the church, and limit and appoint a time for doing thereof, which if not observed accordingly, then the said Justice may bind the ch. wardens over to the Sessions for their negligence, when each of them shall be fined xl s. a peace to the use of the poore, and stand committed to goale till the fines be paid.

Monuments of Idolatry. 1643.

The Ch. wardens by Ord. of Parl^t 18 Aug. 1643 are to take care none of things following be in the church. Noe altars or tables of stone ; Noe rayles about either ; Noe tapers, candlesticks, or basons upon them ; Noe images or pictures of the Trinity, Saints, or Supersticious inscriptions ; Noe crucifixes nor crosses : The Communion table to stand in the body of the church or chancell, and the chancell ground to be levelled as it was 20 years before this Ordinance. If the Ch. wardens be in default herein, they forfeit xl s. to the use of the poore. And the next Justice to cause the premises be done at the parish charge.

Supersticious ap-purtenances. 1644.

By another Ordinance of Parl^t 9 May 1644, All representations of the Trinity, Angel, or Saint in churches are to be taken away and defaced ; The Chancel ground rayed before altars or tables to be presently levelled ; Noe Copes, Surplices,

6. Also it is ordered that the 13th pew in the North middle row of the church, wherein for many yeares together, and by order of this church, as in this booke appeares, the wives of sundry antient yeomen men of this parish have had their seates, viz. Philip Brough's wife, George Barkas' wife, and others, That they shall still enjoy and keepe the said pew and seates as formerly, notwithstanding any title or claime M^r Rob^t Ayton maketh to a seat for himselfe in the said pew: for being that he hath already a fayre and large pew in the church for him and his house, we hold it a breach of good order to admitt him to have another pew, or that either his or any other man's servants of this parish should be seated in this or any other pew with the antient yeomen men's wives or themselves. Yet because Mr Ayton has noe place for his tenants and servants yett set out for them in this church, Wee doe appoint him for that use the 24 pew in the North middle row.

7. And lastly, upon the request and desire of sundry of the parishioners that are farmers, tradesmen, youemen, and others, that either want seates in the church or are inconveniently placed, Wee do give consent that they shall have liberty, at their own proper costs and charges, to erect and build a gallery over the cross North angle twixt the East end of the first pillar, and over the doore goes up to the steeple, provided the same be strongly made of oake wood, and handsomely wrought as other pew work in the church, and noe nuisance of hurt to any whose pews shall happen to be underneath the said gallery.

In confirmation of the premises we have hereunto put our hands the day and yeare aforewritten.—Thomas Delavall ; Thomas Shadforth &c. &c.

Bee it remembred that at a meeting of the foresaid parishioners the 25 day of Aprill 1659, it was agreed that Mr Henry Lambton of Lambton Esq^{re} have for the seating of himselfe and his tenants in this parish that space of ground on the West side of the North Ile of the church, extending from Mr Amcot's pew Northward to the old seats, being in lenth—yards, which he is to build as other pews are at his owne charge.—Thomas Delavall.

Note there are 208 leaves in this booke written and unwritten, numbred 25 Mar. 1648.

(2) Several entries relating to the same suit in this and the following year. It related to the question whether certain lands and tenements (leasehold under the Dean and Chapter), called 'Rainton Low Pitt-houses' and 'Fenkala-banks,' were in the parish of Houghton or of Pittington, and hence which of the two parishes was liable for the maintenance of the poor therein. The lands had formerly been part of Rainton Moor (enclosed some fifty or sixty years previously), which was acknowledged to have been in the parish of Houghton; and they of Pittington contended that 'soe once, must be now.' The other party alleged that the lands in question had been assigned to Pittington as an equivalent for its rights of common on the moor. In January, 1688, the Quarter Sessions, having referred the matter to the arbitration of Dean Sudbury, confirmed his award, which was in favour of Pittington; but in July of the same year discharged the former order, and declared the lands to be in Pittington parish. In July, 1689, the parishioners of Houghton had occasion to bring the question again before the Quarter Sessions, and it seems to have gone on without final determination till July, 1691, when they of Pittington prayed for a trial at law, which was ordered by the Court. Accordingly the case was heard before Baron Turton at the Assizes in August, 1691, when the verdict was in favour of the parish of Pittington. The above account is taken from a contemporary paper, preserved in Pittington Vicarage.

(1) This case of John Johnson of Shincliffe illustrates well the procedure of the spiritual courts. It was protracted from the beginning of June 1600 to the 22nd of May in the following year, having been nine times before the Court. It arose from this Johnson being presented by a churchwarden for suspicion of incontinecy with another man's wife. Having been declared contumacious and threatened with excommunication for not appearing before the Court after citation, he at length presented himself, and denied the charge. Ingram Maugham, the apparitor of the court, promoted the office of the judge against him. The charge resting only on alleged common report, his accusers were required to adduce proof of such report; whereupon at a subsequent sitting of the court they produced nine inhabitants of Shincliffe to swear, not to the fact of the man's guilt, but to the general belief of it. Four of them were examined, and their depositions published, copies of them being given to the several parties. The accused, being called upon to reply, again denied the charge on his oath ex officio. Being then required to produce four honest neighbours as his compurgators—i.e. to swear that they believed him to have sworn truly—he did so, and was acquitted. But, notwithstanding this, he was compelled, under pain of excommunication, to pay the whole costs of the long suit, amounting after taxation to 1 l. 8 s. 4 d.

Note on the Case of Alice Huntley, p. 347.

By the Canon law contract between the parties, per verba de presenti, constituted a valid marriage, though without any intervention of a priest. Hence, persons cited to the ecclesiastical courts for cohabitation, if they could prove such contract, were only required to solemnize the marriage, already contracted, under pain of ecclesiastical penalties. The Council of Trent (Sess. xxiv.) decreed that such informal and irregular marriages should be thenceforward null and void, making the intervention of a priest a sine qua non. But this decree did not affect the procedure of our own ecclesiastical courts. In vol. xxi. of the Surtees Soc. publications (containing depositions and ecclesiastical proceedings from the Courts of Durham from 1311 to the reign of Elizabeth) interesting instances will be found of such handfasting (as it was called), in private houses or elsewhere, being proved and recognised in court. By 26 G. II. c. 33, it was enacted that 'no writ or proceeding shall be had in any ecclesiastical court in order to compel a celebration of any marriage in facie ecclesiæ by reason of any contract of matrimony, whether per verba de presenti or per verba de futuro.' This statute and subsequent Marriage Acts have fixed our present law of marriage. It is observable that the law of Scotland still recognises as valid such marriages as were recognised by the old Canon law.
